Home Bureau Report Shows Work of Women

Their Activities in Ulster County Outlined in Annual Report of Ulster County Home Bureau—Projects Undertaken to Benefit Homes and Families—A Record of Accomplishment.

The scope of the work accomplished by the Ulster County Home Bureau during the past year is embraced in the following report made by Miss Jennie C. Fisher, manager of the Home Bureau, at the annual meeting of the Farm and Home Bureau on Wednesday:

Nineteen organized communities formed the Ulster County Home Bureau of 1923-24. Each of these communities had its full quota of officers, chairman, vice-chairman, secretary, treasurer, and in most cases in addition to these, a group of four or five women as committee women at large. Besides this a great deal of work was done over the county at large. These community officers and committee women make up the Advisory Council of the county Home Bureau which meets once a year to make up the program for the following year and advise the executive committee on the administration of the Bureau. The county organization is managed by a county executive committee of nine women elected by and representing the entire membership of the county. Every woman in the county is eligible to the services of the Home Bureau, and if in return she wishes to support the organization and give her approval of the work it is doing by becoming a member of the organization, we very much appreciate her help.

Membership.
Ulster county had 824 members last year, of them 24 were on the $2.00 basis. This was 100 more than the year before. At the present time the 1925 membership campaign is under way. It has been organized as follows:

A committee from the Home Bureau and Farm Bureau were appointed to make plans for the joint annual community meetings. It was decided to put on in each community the same sketch by local talent and have the community putting the sketch on best repeat this at the annual county wide meeting. Every Farm and Home Bureau cooperated in this. It was also decided to have no leaders from each community trained by Prof. Felton in games and have an hour of games at these annual community meetings. In addition the Farm and Home Bureau managers would give a 10 to 15 minute talk on membership and Farm and Home Bureau work.

These meetings have proven very successful the sketch being given very good in practically all communities and the games succeeding beyond expectation. The local leaders have done exceedingly well to get the crowds from 75 to 200 people to the meetings. The meetings were held previous to the membership campaign and have had an attendance from 75 to 250 people, and we feel indeed very much gratified by the interest shown.

The membership campaign was conducted for two weeks by mail. The first that we have ever tried to conduct it in this way. 286 members ending their dues in by mail. Since then the community committees are canvassing and the total report is not complete, but will probably be about the same as last year.

Finances.
The Ulster County Home Bureau is always had a very hard struggle to finance the work it is doing. It has been financed from the following sources this past year: Community entertainments, $266; membership fees, $772; a $2,000 appropriation from the board of supervisors; Pensions, $30; picnic, $32.55; Farm Bureau, $50; county wide food sale, $19.50; miscellaneous, $2.05. The appropriation of $2,000 from the board of supervisors helped greatly, but of course, was not sufficient to take the financial burden off the county committee entirely.

This made it necessary to have community entertainments and hold Farm and Home Bureau picnics as a means of making money. It is very much that as time goes on the financial problems may be solved in a better way than in raising money through entertainments and picnics.

Administration.
Our aim has been in developing leaders in all communities and have these leaders carry the responsibility of the services of the community organization and program. We have tried to accomplish this through:

1. The continuation of the local district method in the various projects.
2. By holding training schools for leaders and leaders in organization.
3. By encouraging the community committee to make up a program calendar for the year so that officers and committee women may keep before them the aim of the work they are doing.
4. By the community had made up a list of the coming year and a list of it has been mailed to each community.
5. By more clearly defining the

Snow and Sleet Coming Eastward

Blizzards Raging in West Demoralize Traffic—Ten Inches of Snow in Iowa—Roads—Impassable—Storm on Way East.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, Dec. 5.—One of the worst storms in years was spread over the west today.

Blizzards, following a sleet storm were reported raging in Utah, Idaho, Montana, the Dakotas, Nebraska, and just west of Chicago. The demoralizing sleet was making its way eastward. Ten inches of snow, drifted by a driving wind was reported at Sioux City, Ia. Roads in western Nebraska and the Dakotas were said to be virtually impassable.

In all the storm area, the toll of crippled wires and demoralized traffic has been taken. Only the air mail planes today were reported as having bested the storm. East bound planes came through as usual today, but at 8 a. m., Omaha reported no planes had arrived from Chicago. Officials of the air mail service said every attempt to maintain schedules despite the storm was being made.

Blackmail Meant For Charity

Money Mulcted From Indian Prince Was Intended to be Returned to Given to Charity, Says Robinson's Wife.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Dec. 5.—The beautiful blonde matron whose favor cost Sir Hurri Singh of Kashmir $750,000 dramatically declared today that her husband's suit to recover the bulk of the money had a laudable purpose. It was with the idea of returning the money to Sir Hurri or if he refused it, to give it to charity, Mrs. Claude Robinson declared. She said Charles Robinson, her husband, had signed a deed of trust guaranteeing this disposition of any funds obtained in his suit against the Midland Bank. Mrs. Robinson's statement was understood to be the first step toward appealing the adverse decision returned by Lord Dalrymple.

Before taking the appeal, special arrangements were necessary to guarantee the bank of the huge costs of the case of the case just concluded.

It is reported that Singh, whose succession to the throne in Kashmir may be endangered by the affair, has arrived on the continent so that he may be easily reached if necessary.

Criminal action is pending against two of the alleged members of the gang which extorted the hush money.

Coolidge Tired, Returning Home

Trip From Chicago to Washington Will Be Longer Than Trip Westward—Crowded Many Things in Thirteen Hours' Stay.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Enroute to Washington with President Coolidge Dec. 5.—Worn and tired from thirteen crowded hours in Chicago, President Coolidge was crawling back to Washington today aboard a train that does not offer the speed advantages of that upon which he made the outward trip.

By the time the presidential party reaches the capital at 8 o'clock tonight, 23 hours will have elapsed since the departure from Chicago, as against an 18 hour trip westward.

Mr. Coolidge, however, needs the rest. During the short time he spent in Chicago he crowded in two speeches, a luncheon and a dinner, an inspection of the International Livestock Show and a series of conferences with western industrial and political leaders.

The precedent of travelling aboard an ordinary passenger train is being observed scrupulously on the return trip. The president and Mrs. Coolidge are again occupying a drawing room instead of a special car. Breakfast this morning was eaten in the public dining car along with all the other passengers.

In the speeches delivered at the Commercial Club luncheon and the Livestock Exposition, Mr. Coolidge outlined in full detail his reactions to the problems of the farmer. An optimistic outlook was voiced by Mr. Coolidge in pledging the support of the administration to the agricultural commission would evolve recommendations that would result in satisfactory rehabilitation of the agrarian sections of the country.

The route of the train carrying the president is by way of Akron, Youngstown, Conneville and Cumberland. In the presidential party are Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston; Secretary Sloop, Major J. F. Coupal, the White House physician; Captain Adolphus Andrews, the president's naval aide, and the usual corps of secret service men.

Wanted to Keep Annulment Quiet

But Gunn's Attorney Promises to Produce Parents From Whom Young Couple Have Kept Wedding and Annulment Secret.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 5.—William R. Gunn, who gave a Diamond-encrusted address but who is reported to be connected with a prominent family of Troy, N. Y., today started suit before Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins to annul his marriage to Grace Copeland Gunn, also said to be a resident of Troy, on the ground they were under age when the ceremony was performed five years ago at a summer resort in Vermont.

Gunn testified he and his wife married without the consent of their parents. He said they had never lived together.

Justice Tompkins said that before he would grant the application to plaintiffs would have to call his parents or the bride's parents to show lack of consent.

Gunn's attorney promised to do this. He said Gunn wanted to get a secret annulment as neither the parents or any of the friends of the couple knew of the wedding.

Doll Bazaar Well Patronized

The doll bazaar, being conducted this week at the McBride store on Wall street and at the A. and E. Lantry store at 626 Broadway is well patronized. From the amount of sales reported there are a large number of supporters of the American Legion Auxiliary, which is conducting the bazaar. The auxiliary will carry on its usual Christmas Welfare work among needy veterans in this section, of which there are a large number, the money realized from the bazaar being devoted toward this fund.

Large numbers of children with the bazaar dolls, and many of them possessing letters, containing the name of one Santa Claus. It seems that the children all dreamed of dolls have dreamed the right place and are leading their guardians to the right place. The bazaar will be concluded tomorrow, when a record amount of sales is expected.

Hoover Opposes Radio Regulation

Withdraws Support of Legislation at Present Session of Congress—Industry's Development Plan Should Reach More Even Plane.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Virtual withdrawal of the support of Secretary of Commerce Hoover from any radio legislation at the present session of congress was announced today.

Although a strong advocate of the White radio bill at the last session, Hoover now regards development of the radio art as progressing so rapidly that drastic regulatory legislation at this time would be dangerous.

Secretary Hoover despatched his recommendations relative to radio to Representative White, Republican, of Maine.

He urged Congress to go slowly on radio legislation until the industry's development has reached a more even plane and until changes in broadcasting practices are less likely.

From members of the marine and fisheries committee which has charge of radio legislation in the house, it was learned that there is opposition to Hoover's new position. Some members wanted to appeal directly to the president to get the administration's support for the White bill.

Department of commerce officials are particularly opposed to a provision of the White bill saying that licenses for broadcasting shall not be granted to radio monopolies. Another provision prohibiting issuance of broadcasting licenses "except in the public interest" is opposed by the department. These provisions the department holds place too much responsibility upon it in determining what are monopolies and what is "the public interest."

Japan Approves Disarmament

No Cabinet Meeting Regarding Conference but Island Empire Will Consider Sympathetically Proposals From United States.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Tokio, Dec. 5.—Japan will consider sympathetically any proposals for a disarmament conference coming from the United States.

This information was given International News Service here today by officials of the Japanese foreign office.

Statements that Japan opposes limitation of auxiliary war craft are entirely unofficial, foreign office officials declared.

The foreign office told International News Service the Japanese government never has discussed officially the Empire's policy in regard to the one conference except for attitude toward a proposal for such a conference coming from Washington.

There has been no Japanese cabinet action in regard to any conference officials said.

It is the belief in unofficial Japanese quarters however, that France's opposition to limitation of auxiliary war craft remains unchanged and that this French attitude which has delayed the calling of a second arms meeting would make doubtful the success such a world conference might have.

Haley Case in Hands of Jury

Trial Ends of $25,000 Suit Brought Against City by Woman Who Slipped on Ice Sidewalk on Newkirk Avenue.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

The $25,000 action brought by Mrs. Mary Haley against the City of Kingston for injuries sustained by a fall on an icy sidewalk on Newkirk avenue was completed this morning in supreme court and submitted to the jury at noon.

Mrs. Haley, who resides on Newkirk avenue, fell on the ice which was upon the walk along the Connelly building on Newkirk avenue on January 27, 1923, and received very severe injuries. She claims her back was severely injured, that she was confined to her bed for four months after the accident and it was not until summer that she was able to walk and then only with the assistance of a cane. Mrs. Catherine Kearney, who cared for Mrs. Haley during her illness, testified that she had gone to the Haley home on the night Mrs. Haley was injured and assisted in caring for her. Mrs. Haley was unconscious when taken home. The witness testified that for a long time Mrs. Haley was compelled to remain flat on her back and when she attempted to turn suffered great pain.

Several witnesses who reside on Newkirk avenue testified that they had passed up and down the street several times a week during the winter in question and they noticed the ice on the Connelly walks. Ice formed on a leader on the building, over a fence and down on the sidewalk. At the fence the ice was described as being from four to seven inches in thickness and tapered off at the curb line it was thinner but covered more of a space on the walk.

Dr. Norwood, Dr. Buckley and Dr. O'Leary examined Mrs. Haley to determine the extent of her injuries. Dr. Quinn, who attended Mrs. Haley during the time she was under a doctor's care after the fall, has since died and the extent of her injuries as secured from Dr. Quinn by the police when making an investigation of the case was not allowed in evidence.

According to Mrs. Kearney's testimony, it was May 20 before Mrs. Haley was able to sit up after the accident. In June she was able to walk with a cane and with assistance and in September she was still using a cane.

One witness testified that the walk along Newkirk avenue adjoining the Connelly building was in bad shape a great deal of the time. Several witnesses testified that when going up or down the street they used the roadway as the walks were dangerous on account of the steep grade of the street.

In the afternoon session Mrs. Catherine Dugan, mother of Mrs. Haley, substantiated the testimony of previous witnesses as to her on the leader of the Connelly building and on the sidewalk, and as to Mrs. Haley's condition after the accident.

Mary Haley, the plaintiff, testified about her condition for some time after the accident and stated that she still has pains in her back, is subject to headaches, and is affected by sudden noises. She produced certificates of her competence as a trained attendant and cited a number of cases showing continuity of her employment before the accident and showing the number of cases she has had to refuse as a result of her injuries. Twelve years ago she reported injuries to the police.

At the close of the plaintiff's case Judge Jenkins, corporation counsel, made a formal motion to direct a verdict of no cause of action which was denied by Judge Staley.

Chief of Police Wood was the first witness called by the city. He said that Officer Raymond Van Buren was on patrol in the Newkirk avenue district that night. Van Buren later testified that he noticed no ridge of ice across the sidewalk at the rear of the Connelly building. Chief Wood stated that he ordered Sergeant Phinney to make an investigation and report his finding. Mr. Phinney produced a report of Dr. Norwood's statement of injuries received by Mr. Haley, who he said suffered from concussion of the spine and was subject to nervous shocks.

Officer James V. Simpson testified that he patrolled that section the week preceding January 21, 1923, and had noticed no ridge of ice at the side of the Connelly building.

High F. Connelly, resident of the building referred to as the Connelly building, testified that he shoveled off snow which fell on the sidewalk and put ashes, dirt, or salt on it which formed there but admitted that water did occasionally trickle from the leader on the sidewalk. Mrs. Connelly gave similar testimony.

W. Scott Van Kesteren, superintendent of public works in charge of the streets, said that he received no notice of the ridge of ice.

Former Superintendent Henry D. Tharrow identified a blueprint of Newkirk avenue just off Broadway as the work. He said that the grade of the street was steep and that the sidewalk sloped towards the Connelly building.

Testimony on the part of defense in regard to the condition of the walks at the corner of Broadway and Newkirk avenue and testimony in regard to her injuries was the only testimony given at the morning session. Police Officer Phinney testified that he had gone down Newkirk avenue Thursday night and that the night from the street lights on Broadway was not illuminated the street. He was able to see small objects on the sidewalk and also was able to tell the time from his watch when at a point near Mrs. Haley's fall.

At the conclusion of a testimony Judge Jenkins, corporation counsel, prepared his motions made at the conclusion of the plaintiff's case for the dismissal of the complaint. This motion was denied and after the jury had been impaneled by Judge Jenkins the case was referred to Judge Staley.

At the conclusion of the case, the jury was sent to the jury room to deliberate on the case. The jury was expected to return its verdict at a later date.

State Trooper Offered Post

Lieutenant Moore, Head of State Police School at Troy Offered Position of Schenectady Police Chief—Colonel Chandler Recommended Him.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Two men with criminal records were being sought today by authorities of this city in connection with the slaying of Captain Albert Youmans, vice-crusader.

District Attorney Alexander T. Blessing said he believed the men could throw light on the killing of Youmans and the crime wave which has been sweeping the city.

One of the men, according to Blessing, obtained a new set of license plates from the state motor vehicle bureau at Albany under a false name within 48 hours after Youmans was slain.

Both men, the police claim, have been engaged in bootleg activities. Plans for a complete reorganization of the police department were being whittled into shape today by Mayor William W. Campbell. Lieutenant A. B. Moore, head of the state police school at Troy, has been offered the post of chief of police to succeed James Rynek, whose resignation was demanded by the mayor.

It was understood that Colonel George F. Chandler of Kingston, former superintendent of the state police, recommended Moore for the post of police chief to Mayor Campbell.

Ever since the crime wave struck this city the mayor has been looking for a "General Butler" to take charge of the police department.

Confident as Trial Ends

Mrs. Anna Buzzi On Trial for Second Time For The Murder of Her Lover—Jury Gets Case This Afternoon.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 5.—Cheerful and apparently confident of acquittal, Mrs. Anna Buzzi today heard her lawyer sum up the case in her second trial for the murder of her lover, Frederick Schneider. The case was to go to the jury this afternoon.

Refreshed by a full night's sleep, the woman who spent a year in the death house faced a crowded courtroom with none of the hysteria which marked her appearance in the first two days of the trial. She listened quietly as James Donnelly, her attorney, asked Judge Waverrogl to charge the jury to disregard Mrs. Buzzi's "bloody case" as evidence.

"I want you to drive suspicion from the case," Donnelly pleaded. "No one has positively identified the defendant; she is being tried on suspicion."

"The jury is being asked to solve a mystery that the police couldn't solve."

Donnelly asked the court to disregard the "lying story" of William Turk, Mrs. Buzzi's brother-in-law, whom she accused of the crime, and whose testimony was considered instrumental by the state in convicting Mrs. Buzzi at her first trial.

"Turk has been proven a liar by the testimony of others," Donnelly declared.

Nurses' Bazaar Here Saturday

The student nurses of the Kingston City Hospital will hold a bazaar at the nurses' home on Broadway, two doors below the K. of C. building, Saturday afternoon and evening for the benefit of the hospital. CAHOKIA MOUNDS ARE AGES OLDER THAN TROY Ruins Beneath Trojan City Give Ample Proof, According to Indian Collector.

Springfield, Ill.—Centuries before Achilles and Ulysses and their Greek warriors drove the Trojans from the walls of Troy, as Homer relates, an equally industrious and more faithful army was laboring in Illinois building the Cahokia mounds, according to a theory advanced by Edward W. Payne, Indian collector of this city.

Thirty-six hundred years ago Troy was a flourishing city. Excavators have reached what they declare to be its ruins, under the ruins of five other cities. Then going still deeper they found ruins of three other cities below the level of Troy. And in the ruins of the city nine layers deep evidences were found, Mr. Payne says, that show it was a contemporary of the Cahokia mounds.

Dr. Heinrich Schliemann is the explorer who did the excavating, according to Mr. Payne. He found pottery there which has been photographed, and copies of these photographs, now in possession of Mr. Payne, have been used in a careful comparison with the pottery which was recovered recently from Monk's mound, the largest of those of the Cahokia group.

"I have duplicated every design on the pottery taken from beneath the ancient city of Troy with pottery taken from this mound," Mr. Payne said. "I am the only one who has been able to do this for the reason that I am the only one who got the pottery recovered from the mounds."

When the mounds were built, Mr. Payne averred, there was evidently a universal custom of burden bearing by means of a basket strapped on the back, between the shoulders, and fastened by means of a strap across the forehead. Every bit of the dirt that went to make up the immense mounds was carried by means of such baskets, sometimes from considerable distances. Canoes also were evidently pressed into service in transporting the little offerings of earth. It was all brought with religious reverence to make this great tribute and sacrificial offering to the god or gods of the builders, Mr. Payne said.

Estimates of the amount of labor required to build the mounds, printed recently, are deficient, according to some authorities, Mr. Payne added. One authority estimated that the labor took 12,000 men and women 100 years to accumulate these deposits of earth. The women, he declared, did most of the work.

Philadelphian BuildsInn as Silent Protest

Philadelphia.—High among the tops of the Catskills a leaping flame for nearly two hours proclaimed the end of a Philadelphian's enterprise. The Hotel Kaaterskill was burning to the ground.

Friends and acquaintances of the man who built it, George Harding, learned that the world's largest mountain hotel was only a heap of ashes. With the news of the hotel's passing comes the tale of why it was built.

George J. Harding, a grandson, reveals the history:

"My grandfather was a stubborn old fellow. When he made up his mind he wanted a thing, he either got it or found out why not. That's how the Kaaterskill came to be," he said.

"Previous to 1879 he had been in the habit of going to the Catskills with an invalid daughter. At those times he stopped at what was then the leading hotel, near Kaaterskill mountain.

"One day he asked that broiled chicken he served his daughter each day while she was at the resort. This the waiter refused, and so my grandfather called the proprietor. He, too, refused the request. 'Chicken only on Sunday,' was the edict. My grandfather, accustomed to having his own way, became angry.

"I'll come back here next summer and build a hotel on that mountain," he pointed to the Kaaterskill—that will forever put your outfit in the shade," he thundered. And the next summer, 1879, he did."

Colorado Glaciers Recede40 Feet in 22 Years

Boulder, Colo.—Colorado's glaciers are vanishing slowly, according to Prof. Julius Henderson, curator of the museum of the University of Colorado.

The great ice masses on the glacier peaks of the Rockies have been in slow retreat for the last 20 years, Professor Henderson says.

"However, the retreat has been very rapid since 1912," he adds. "For climatic conditions have been unfavorable to the accumulation or preservation of ice during that period. This is particularly noticeable in the Arapahoe glacier, the largest in Colorado."

"If disintegration continues at the present rate, all the glaciers in the state will disappear with the possible exception of two, the A. Lynde and the larger St. Vrain."

Professor Henderson expressed the opinion that the recent dry seasons were only part of the "climatic cycle" and probably would not continue as unfavorable.

Detailed study of the Arapahoe glacier reveals that the great ice sheet has retreated 40 feet within the last 22 years. Corresponding loss to be shown on others, large and small, Professor Henderson says.

THE WHY, WHEN AND WHERE OF FASHIONS.

Lorgnettes and Eyeglasses.

In a church in Florence, existed, formerly, a monument erected to the memory of Arnaut, who is claimed to have invented eyeglasses around 1285.

Pitoy writes in his book—the oldest encyclopedia in existence—that Emperor Nero, who reigned from 54 to 68, used to look through emerald glasses at the gladiatorial combats and the arena between gladiators and beasts.

The original idea of the lorgnette, however, was to see without being seen. Thus we find them, for instance, of 300 years ago, which had a little hole or a mirror in them, so that the fair owner could be safely watched, and yet see what effect her charms have taken.

Another type was a pair of opera glasses with small mirrors at the sides showing what happened behind the back of the observer. The present type of lorgnette—a pair of eyeglasses on a handle—came from France during the end of the XVIII century. As another instrument of affection.

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

To Be Remembered When Buying Coat

Lines, Watchword When Tall or Short Woman Invests in Wrap.

It may be that you cannot, "by taking thought," add one inch to your stature, but you can, by "taking thought" when you go shopping subtract or seem to subtract, inches from your silhouette, advises a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star.

If you know yourself as thin and "gawking" even though your friends hardly describe you as "tall and slender" be wary as you select one of the most important articles of your winter wardrobe—your coat. Fashion says, be slender, not thin painfully thin.

Now, it is obvious that the particular subject of your concern should be line. The general rule you should remember is that long lines from shoulder to foot give height; and you should accordingly, avoid length of line selecting, rather, a garment which incorporates some feature that successfully "cuts" height.

Horizontal lines crossing the figure are one of the first aids to the too tall woman who would appear more petite.

Look then for a coat which achieves horizontal line either by arrangement of the garment itself or of its trimmings. Even a belt cut off a perceptible part of the tall woman's length, and a coat collar, also, of course horizontal, seems to increase the size of her throat. But the tall, thin woman should avoid high collars, and collars that are perpendicular in line, for such collars add inches to her stature.

The too-tall, too-slender woman often has an unhappy predilection for extremely severe, tailored, "mannish" coats. Coats of this type invariably emphasize the very defects she should accept to conceal. A short coat in points, box style, is a garment that should not only cut her height in a feminine way but give to her too-thin figure a rounder effect.

The woman who is tall, and especially in proportion to the length of her feet, should avoid any extreme waist-line effect in her coat. If the coat has a waistline at all, it should either be normal or low.

Chintz Gown Novelty Makes Its Appearance

An absolute novelty is the chintz gown that has made its appearance in designs by Parisian artists. It is so well liked that many charming models of it are shown by American designers. Chintz was first introduced in garden frocks, anticipating the later season, and it has also been used by some of the best known couturiers to embellish gowns of more formality for afternoon and evening wear.

Philippe et Gaston have designed a strikingly handsome and decidedly elaborate toilette of chintz in bright, colored flower pattern, which is further elaborated with silk embroideries, and is combined with a tulle material in color.

In another model—an evening gown—Parisian authorship, in colors and in lace, colors on an ivory background—the pattern is traced and lined with such lights of brilliant tulle heads.

In Patchwork Design

Several of the latest models show the new effect in a stimulating design of applique, of which the silks that form a patchwork, the type dress, of blue velvet has been extended from neck to hem. In the front, while another of black, the design shows a similar decoration as a border around the skirt.

Equally Popular

There are two types of evening gowns in equal favor. One is the dress which is in open gown without ornamentation at all. The other is black satin gown with a flashing white and black diamond back.

Close Umbrella to Dry It

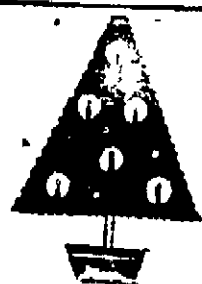

The idea that a wet umbrella should be closed to dry is all wrong, we are told by the manufacturers. This makes the ribs and makes the umbrella bulky. Always stand a wet umbrella open to enable the water to drip away from the ribs.

Mortimer L. Schiff's gift of $25,000 toward the completion of the cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York does not imply any falling away from the Jewish faith but merely a recognition that the cathedral is a monument to his city and an influence for good. It represents a spirit altogether antipodal to that of the Ku Klux Klan.

A man to be really in love, Edwin Markham is quoted, must love poetry, and every young woman should test her suitor by reading poetry to him. Should he fail to warm to it, she would be wise to send him about his business. But there is an obstacle which the venerable author of "The Man With a Hoe" seems to have overlooked. It might be as difficult to induce the average young woman of our time to read sonnets to her "steady" as to persuade him to listen to them. And she really might prefer to judge him by the size and quality of his offerings of chocolates.

LOCAL MEN FOR LOCAL WORK.

There will be very general approval of the position taken by President Coolidge in rejecting as a national policy the practice of giving Federal officials a leave of absence in order that they may temporarily fill local administrative offices. The subject came up for discussion because of the "lending" of General Smedley D. Butler, of the Marines, to the city of Philadelphia, where he has been serving as Director of Public Safety—in other words, enforcer of the police laws. In a statement attributed to a spokesman for the White House it was asserted that hereafter the President will veto requests that officers of the permanent military service be granted leave of absence for the purpose mentioned.

There are a number of good reasons why such leaves should be refused. The one given at the White House is that if a Federal officer is given special leave in order to occupy a local office, the National Administration is connected, in the public mind at least, with the local administration. That is, so long as the leave of absence is granted, it is assumed that the national administration approves of the manner in which the official is performing his local duties. Cancellation of the leave would be interpreted as a disapproval of the service he was rendering locally. It is inevitable that the National Government becomes more or less responsible for the local administration.

But there is another reason, perhaps more important than that given at the White House, why such an arrangement is not wise. The people of Philadelphia are or are not capable of self-government. If they are, they ought to be able to elect or appoint or employ some one of their own citizens to head their Department of Public Safety. If they are not capable of self-government, then our system of local self-government is fundamentally unsound and ought to be abandoned. Philadelphia ought to be ashamed to appeal to the National Government for some one to run her local affairs. General Butler is undoubtedly a man of superior ability, but if he is the only man who can enforce law and uphold order in Philadelphia, then that city is in a very bad way, indeed.

A TYPOGRAPHICAL MIXUP.

Recently the Boston Traveler "reaped" all the newspapers of the county, alone publishing a story of dramatic suicide on the part of Myron T. Herrick, our Ambassador to France. But instead of the large headlines naturally to be expected, the Traveler printed the item in an obscure column of its first edition and then "killed" it in the greatest possible haste. The item, under a New York date line, read as follows:

General world conditions are more favorable than at any time since 1914. Ambassador Herrick said today before sailing for Paris to resume his post. "The new world and the old are reflecting a spirit of confidence and hope," he said. "It is the first time for a great many years that I have gone abroad in a happy mood. He then returned to his home at 125 Summer street. Obtaining a piece of paper, he died it about ten peck and fastened the other end to a rafter from the rear porch. Women neighbors noticed the body and notified the police. Officers cut the rope and found the man dead.

If Ambassador Herrick had received this news on board his Atlantic liner he could have quoted Mark Twain to the effect that the report of his death was "greatly exaggerated." The Boston Herald facetiously remarked that "no other newspaper in the United States would have handled so modestly so dramatic a series of happenings." But its neighboring contemporaries in general were merciful to the Traveler, well knowing that a typographical mixup is not only possible but occasionally occurs in even the best regulated newspaper plants.

That Body of Yours

YOUR STOMACH MUSCLES.

You have been having "stomach trouble" for years. Your family doctor has pointed out to you that it could not be a serious matter or you would have been dead ere this.

He has perhaps had an X-ray examination made, and has pointed out that it would have been discovered by this method.

However, you are not satisfied and have worried about it considerably. You have an uncomfortable feeling after eating, your stomach seems to swell, perhaps to burn, and you have belching of gas.

What's the matter? Well, it has perhaps never occurred to you that your stomach has muscles just the same as your arms and legs.

It is not exactly the same kind of muscle because it is not under the control of your will, as is the muscle of your arms and legs, but it can get tired, can be overworked, and can have things interfere with it to such an extent that it can't do its work properly.

You see the job of the muscles in your stomach is to churn up your food, so that the stomach juice can get properly mixed with the food. In order to do this work nature has been very generous and has supplied the stomach with muscles running lengthwise, crosswise, and obliquely. When these muscles all get working the food certainly gets well mixed with the stomach juice, is brought to a liquid state, and is in shape for digestion. But if anything interferes with these muscles, then that food already in the stomach is going to lie there and ferment, and gases form which render you uncomfortable, unless you can get them moved upwards or downwards.

What is the likeliest thing to interfere with the action of the stomach or these muscles?

Too much food will do it. Too much liquid will also dilute the stomach and keep muscles stretched too long at a time.

If a person worries too much, there is bound to be interference with the flow of juice, and the muscles also.

Frequently it is because the muscles of the stomach are in poor condition, because all the rest of the muscles are in poor condition.

You are below par everywhere, and the stomach shares in the weakness. Sometimes the front abdominal wall—also muscle—is weak and allows the stomach to sag, thus interfering with muscular action. Chew your food, eat small meals even if you eat oftener, and try to tone up your body.

LECTURE AT WOODSTOCK ON BIBLE DISTRIBUTION

For the past few weeks there has been displayed in the window of the Woodstock post office a poster containing a very significant list of languages into which the Bible or portions of the Bible have been translated. There are over seven hundred. Some of them are so recent and new that they cannot be found in dictionaries and encyclopedias that were published only ten years ago.

Now the people of Woodstock are to have the privilege of hearing something about this work of Bible translation and Bible distribution as it is carried on by organizations in this country today. The Rev. Henry Smith of Rifton, secretary of the Ulster County Bible Society, is to give a lecture illustrated with stereoscopic slides and will tell about it. He will have something to say about the work of Bible distribution as it affects the people of the community.

The lecture is to be given in the Woodstock Reformed Church on Sunday evening, December 7, at half past seven. All are cordially invited. There is no fee for admission.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

Dec. 5, 1904.—Isaac Wells died at his home on O'Neil street.

The Rev. Francis Fabian of the Immaculate Conception Church sent communication to state board regarding purchase of four acres of land on Main street property for a cemetery. It was referred to a committee.

John J. Cullen was first man out with a stick on Saugerties road, winning a bottle of champagne at the 12-0 fiasco, and another bottle at Hubert's.

Dec. 5, 1914.—The new edition of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, on Fair street, was completed. Frederick Schoonmaker, a well known blacksmith, died suddenly at his home on Lindeman avenue. The Rev. Francis Washburn died in Newburgh. Harry Miller and Elizabeth Newcomb married at Sandusky.

WHY

Fruit Growers Regard Lady-Beetle as a Friend

Insect friends—hundreds of them in once—are shown in the latest group put on exhibition by the entomological department of the American Museum of Natural History. When we hear of immense numbers of insects, we usually think of injurious kinds, but those shown here swarming over the rocks on the top of a Colorado mountain are "lady-beetles," insects that live from youth to old age by feeding upon either plant lice or scale insects.

There are many kinds of lady-beetles both in the East and in the West. The adult beetles pass the winter securely tucked away under stones, bark, or even in crevices of our houses. Frequently a number of the hibernates squeezed up to each other as though for mutual warmth, and in the West mounted thousands gather on the tops of hills and low mountains for their winter sleep.

This habit of the lady-beetles, or, to give them their originally longer name, the Beetles of our Blessed Lady, the Virgin Mary, is neatly turned to man's convenience by the fruit growers of California, who send pack trains to collect the beetles by the ton, keep them peacefully sleeping in cold storage until orchards become infested with man's insect enemies upon which these beetles feed, and then rush the beetles by parcel post to the scene of action.

Why Success Comes to Young Men in Business

"I have watched many young men climb to the top," says a writer in the Efficiency Magazine, "and I have noticed that there are nearly always four reasons why they succeed."

"First, they make up their minds. They don't drift. They decide—that seems to be the beginning of every career. They choose the jobs that will suit them best and away they go. "Second, I notice that they are always pleased with themselves and their jobs and their associates. They are happy and keen in their work. They smile their way through."

"Third, they are hungry to learn. They listen as well as talk. They study and think and appreciate the advice of other people. They are never cocksure and unteachable."

"Fourth, they finish what they start. This is a sure sign of a strong personality. There are scores of starters to every finisher. The average man gets stuck fast in his job. The obstacles bring him to a standstill."

Why Insects Don't Sink

Certain insects are known as water skaters, skippers or striders. They move about as freely on water as other insects do on a hard surface.

This they are enabled to do because of the surface film and because their feet are covered with a velvety substance which does not easily get wet, says Nature Magazine. The surface of a liquid acts as if it were covered with an elastic film like a thin rubber membrane.

If an ordinary sewing needle is carefully laid on the surface of water in a basin the needle will float, notwithstanding the fact that the density of steel is greater than that of water.

The needle floats for the simple reason that it is not heavy enough to break through the surface film. It bears down the surface of the water, yet does not break through it.

Why Stamps Are Not Cash

Adhesive postage stamps are not redeemed in cash because there is no authority in law for so doing. It is a measure of protection against the use of stamps for remittances, which use is contrary to the interests of the postal service, since it diverts the postal revenues from their proper channel, causing the mailing post office to do the work while the selling post office gets the revenue. Another objection to redemption is that it would afford opportunity for post office burglars to realize upon their plunder.

Why Smoke Hurts Trees

The Department of Agriculture says soft coal deposits a coating of carbon and coal ash upon the leaves of trees, which interferes with natural functioning of the breathing pores of leaves. Smooth-leaved trees, such as evergreens, suffer most because of the deposit that lies in close contact with the leaf surface. The hairy or woolly leaf coverings of some other trees prevent the forming of a compact coating over the leaf surfaces. Such trees endure a smoky atmosphere much longer.

How Earthquakes Originate

The origin of earthquakes has been traced to two principal causes, the first of which is tectonic, and the second volcanic. The former refers to movements in the earth's crust, known as faults, possibly caused by the shrinking of the interior of the earth by reason of cooling.

Why Justice Is Supreme

Justice and humanity have been fighting their way like a thunderstorm against the organized wickedness of human nature. God has given mankind but one clue to success—truth and exact justice.—Wendell Phillips.

AMERICAN EAGLES.

The first American gold coinage of eagles, half-eagles and quarter-eagles, of the value of $10, $5 and $2.50 respectively, were placed in circulation 132 years ago tomorrow, December 6, 1792.

One and three dollar gold pieces were formerly coined, but were discontinued in 1830. The first coin called an eagle was used in Ireland in the 13th century, and was so called from the figure of an eagle impressed upon it, but it was made of base metal.

LADY ARABELLA JOHNSON.

Was the daughter of Thomas, Earl of Lincoln. She married Isaac Johnson, who left his native land for New England from religious motives. Lady Arabella cheerfully accompanied him, and they arrived at Salem, Mass., in April, 1630. He was a cheerful and gentle man, but she died in the September following her arrival. Mr. Johnson survived her little more than a month. He is regarded as the founder of Boston, and though his time was brief yet the good work he accomplished will never be forgotten by the people of New England. But dearer still is the memory of Lady Arabella.

GATLING.

The first patent for the machine of destruction since called the Gatling gun, was granted to Richard Jordan Gatling by the U. S. Patent Office sixty-three years ago today. Gatling, a native of North Carolina, had several other inventions to his credit when in 1861 he conceived the idea of a revolving battery gun. He was then in his forty-third year. The first six machines he made were destroyed by fire in Cincinnati. The next 12 he made were used with good effect by General Butler on the James River against the C. S. A. Improving his invention in 1865, he succeeded in having it adopted by the U. S. A. in the following year, though rejected at the same time by the British Government. After several years spent in perfecting the gun, Gatling lived to see its adoption by practically all the armies of the world. He died in 1902.

WEATHER FORECASTING IS AIDED BY TREES

Notable Discovery Made by Arizona
Astronomer After Twenty Years of Study.

Tucson, Ariz.—The tree as an accurate and reliable assistant in the task of long-range weather forecasting may be the outcome of more than twenty years of study by Dr. A. E. Douglass, director of Steward observatory and professor of astronomy at the University of Arizona here.

A definite connection between the annual rings on trees and rainfall has been established, Doctor Douglass said. The first linking of such a possibility occurred to the scientist 20 years ago while he was working near Prescott, Ariz. He discovered that the annual rings on pine trees there corresponded, by showing rapid or slow seasonal growth, to the average rainfall over the last forty years.

From the tree rings Doctor Douglass worked out the probable variations of the sun during the last four or five centuries. He received striking corroboration of his theories and work more than two years ago in a letter from Dr. E. W. Maunder, an English astronomer, who has been studying the sun's spots historically and found a dearth of them from 1650 to 1715.

Doctor Douglass' further studies have indicated that such a condition can be traced through the annual rings of the pine trees.

Doctor Douglass' pamphlet on the subject, "Some Aspects of the Use of the Annual Rings of Trees in Climate Study," recently was selected by the Smithsonian institution as one of the scientific classics of the year. The Arizona scientist has been invited to speak on the subject before the Carnegie Institute at Washington.

He hopes to aid materially in increasing the accuracy of long-range weather forecasting through his discoveries. At present he is investigating the giant Sequoias, some of which have been pronounced the oldest living things. He hopes to obtain data for a period extending probably 8,000 years back.

$60,000 to Legless Boy Is Only 'Coupla Dollars'

New York.—"What do I care for a couple dollars? They won't give me back my legs."

This was the reply of Benjamin Warshofsky, twenty years old, when asked what he would do with $60,000 the American Railway Express company was ordered by Justice Faber in Queens Supreme court to give him in compensation for injuries received in a collision between a trolley car and one of its trucks. Warshofsky, a delivery boy, lost his left leg as a result of the accident, and had the other so badly smashed it is useless.

"I ain't worrying about what I'm going to do," he said, "or about the money. The only thing I'm worrying about is getting well."

He said he passed seven weeks in Rushing hospital after being hurt and nine more weeks at home. Every day he sits at the window and stares through the ugly lattice of the fire escape—at folk who can walk.

"Work at anything with my hands?" He laughed bitterly. "Do you suppose I'd have been out there delivering packages if I'd ever learned any sort of trade? The only thing my hands are good for are to drag me from one chair to another."

"What good is money if I've got to sit in one place all the rest of my life?"

Chinese Mule Is Rival of

Missouri Breed in Army

Washington.—Is the Missouri mule of the United States army variety slipping? This question is to be determined, so far as the American expeditionary force in China is concerned.

The quartermaster of the American force at Tientsin recently purchased a dozen Chinese moles to conduct experiments to determine their comparative value as against the American animal imported for transport.

It seems the Chinese mule, which hails from Manchuria and Mongolia, and stands on an average between 12 and 14 hands, has excellent points. He is exceptionally sturdy and hardy. A normal load for one of them on a fairly smooth road is a ton or more, and an average day's march of twenty-five miles under a 350-pound pack is common.

The Chinese mule subsists on a ration costing less than 25 cents a day, upon which an American animal would starve.

German Children Hold

Unique Garden Festival

Berlin.—A unique harvest festival recently took place in the industrial suburb of Berlin, Neukölln. A suburb of a Dayton manufacturing concern, Dayton, Ohio, has copied the ancient plan of turning over vacant land to children of employers for gardening purposes. The festival marked the end of this year's experiment.

Thirty-five boys and 20 girls had cultivated strips of land each 30 by 100 feet. The average yield per child was 100 heads of lettuce, 50 pounds of carrots, 50 pounds of cucumbers, 30 pounds of string beans, 25 pounds of peas, 25 pounds of celery, 25 pounds of corn, 12 pounds of peas, 10 pounds of radishes, 10 pounds of onions and 10 pounds of potatoes.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

CAT AT CONCERT

Christopher, the cat, went to a concert, and no one knew he was there until it was almost over.

"I Was Almost Hit."

Then some people got up to leave and Christopher thought he could get away at the same time without being noticed. He had been wanting to leave before, but he had thought perhaps it would not be polite.

The family had all come to the concert. They had all been very much excited about it.

That was what made Christopher want to come in the first place. He had thought it would be a splendid thing.

It was a band concert and Christopher had come in when no one had noticed him.

He had heard the others talk about tickets and as he had no ticket and no money with which to buy a ticket he thought he'd better get in rather quietly and without being noticed.

He had succeeded.

He had walked in without being noticed. Such crowds had been coming in so he wasn't seen.

Then he had found himself a place behind some benches and he had sat there waiting to hear the concert. His white whiskers had trembled with delight at the thought.

But now he had come out. He had been waiting for an opportunity.

Ah, he was happy when he saw the few people coming out. The members of his family were still staying, but he was not near them. He didn't know whether they would notice him. They were almost too far away.

Well, he got up and walked behind those who were leaving a little ahead of time.

He walked quietly and in a most dignified concert manner. He was sure it was a concert manner as the others had walked that way—just as though they knew everyone was looking at them but hoped they could make themselves believe they didn't think so!

They knew they were noticed but they tried to make themselves think that they weren't.

So Christopher walked out.

And people looked at him and smiled and some nudged each other and said:

"He wanted to hear the music, too."

Well, he was home quite a bit ahead of the family, and he spoke to Napoleon, the other cat, about the concert.

"Napoleon," he said, "you would have been surprised to have discovered that people will like anything for which they have to pay."

"At least that is what I have decided."

"I listened to that concert—or almost all of it. I watched the people and their faces were all happy and beaming and pleased."

"And the concert was far, far louder than any of our back-fence concerts ever thought of being."

"My dear Napoleon, you can't imagine how noisy this concert was. You can't begin to imagine."

"And the noise it was the better the people seemed to like it."

"They clapped at the end of each piece and made a great deal of noise themselves."

"Now you know how they act about our back-fence concerts?"

"I know," said Napoleon. "I was sitting my most beautiful self and I was almost hit with a jug of water—that's how they act."

"Exactly," said Christopher. "and yet they will pay to hear all that noise at a concert."

"Yes, that is what I think about it. If we can think up some way so that they have to pay to have us sing on the back yard fence, then they will clap and think we're fine."

"We've given music to them free all these years and we've spoiled them."

"I really do believe I have the right idea at last, and now we must think of how to put our concert on a paying basis, as it is said."

"That's what we must think about," agreed Napoleon.

Thought It Hers

Mabel—Papa, does our family own a piano?

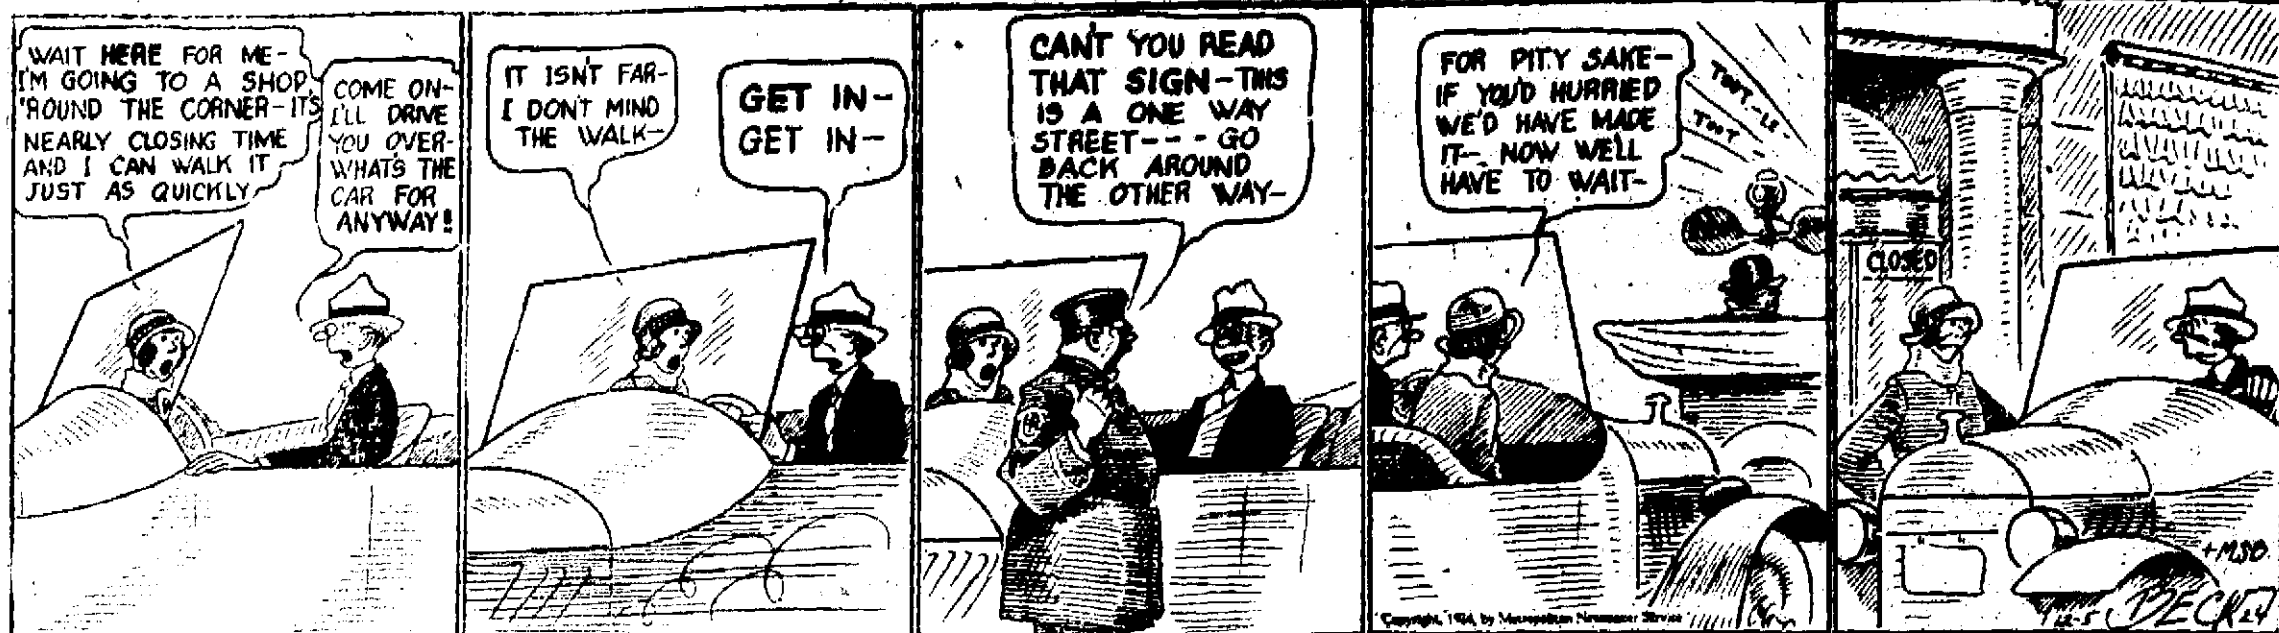

Papa—What nonsense, child! Who put that idea into your head?

Mabel—Why, I asked sister last night what big star it was that was in the sky and she said it wasn't a star, but a piano, and that it was true.

Friendship Invaluable

Little your own name is mighty good advice, but better is that which comes from the lips of the other fellow. If he is good help, we cannot live without him. If he is bad help, we cannot live without him. Friends are invaluable.

FROM FAMOUS COOKS

The following salad is both very good and a whole meal in itself:

Italian Salad.—Boil spaghetti or macaroni in ring-shape, if it can be obtained; if not, use the elbow or shell, or even the plain, breaking it into inch-pieces. Boil until tender in salted water, then drain and rinse in very cold water.

drain and chill for several hours. For six servings mix two cupsful of the spaghetti with two-thirds of a cupful of cooked chilled peas and two canned pineapples to give color to the combination. Moisten well with mayonnaise, add one-half of a tiny onion grated, and serve on lettuce arranged on individual plates. Sprinkle with finely chopped parsley.

Chicken à la Drake.—Cut the raw breast of chicken into pieces of convenient size to serve, saute in butter until brown and well cooked. Drain large slices of pineapple from the juice and saute them in butter. When brown arrange on a platter and on each place a piece of chicken; then over the whole pour a rich white sauce, to two cupsful of which add one-half cupful of mushrooms cut into shreds, and enough paprika to make it slightly pink. Garnish with finely chopped parsley. Shredded Virginia ham and truffles added to the white sauce makes a dish fit for an epicure.

Angel Pie.—Make a flaky, rich crust and bake on the outside of deep pans. Individual or larger, as one wishes. For the filling beat six eggs to a light fluffy froth, add a cupful of granulated sugar and beat again vigorously, then whip in the juice of one and one-half lemons and cook the mixture over hot water until it thickens. Cool slightly and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Fill the pie shells, then top the pies with the remaining egg whites beaten stiffly and mixed with six tablespoonsful of granulated sugar and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Brown delicately and cool before serving.

Oliveria.—Dec. 4.—Service on the Big Indian telephone line was temporarily blocked on account of the wind blowing a large tree across the line in front of William Short's.

Clifton Glass and wife of Kingston are visiting Mrs. Glass's sister, Mrs. Archie Kane.

Mrs. Lawrence Dutcher has moved to Kingston, where she is spending the winter.

William Short is building a dock in front of the heading mill to keep the Esopus creek from turning out his lawn in front of his house.

Charles Moe is still living in his tent.

Dave Falbrin has moved into the house formerly owned by Miss Etta Owens.

Herman Van Der Wald and sister, Mrs. Isaacs, have returned to New York city for the winter.

John Barnum has returned to New York city for the winter, after successfully superintending the building of a large docking in the Esopus creek in front of Edward Dutcher's.

Eight hundred loads of stone were used and about 15,000 feet of lumber in the lot were used for cribbing and cross ties. Credit is largely due to the town superintendent, John Ford, who has successfully built many dockings in the town.

LYONSVILLE.

Lyonville, Dec. 4.—A number of people in this section have severe colds.

Mrs. Frank Haas and daughter Anna, were out for a drive on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ganoung of Poughkeepsie, spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Ganoung of this village.

Mrs. Daniel Linden and little daughter of Brooklyn, are spending some time with Mrs. Linden's mother.

All Over The United States

At about this time, the sole topic of part of the family is, what are we going to give Dad for Christmas.

We are presenting to you a little sketch of how one family solved this problem.

It was about 8 p. m., two weeks before Christmas, supper was over and the head of the family had gone to the show. The little group that was left gathered in the sitting room. Ma was there and Sis and Brother. Ma started the discussion off with, "What are we going to give Dad this Christmas?"

Sis with true feminine spirit, said, "Let's give him a manicure set," which was laughed down by her brother.

Every year so far he had been given about everything and now there was hardly anything left to give.

Well, they finally gave some little trinket and the matter was settled till another Christmas.

NOW FOLKS!

Here's Where We Cut In

To the hundreds of families in this vicinity now deciding what to give Dad, we say, "Why not give him an Overcoat?"

A true gift is worthy of the giver, is appreciated, and is of service and an overcoat is a summary of all these. Don't be like the above family and just give him a little tiny thing.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

MODESTY HAS ITS GEOGRAPHY

Women of Different Lands Vary as to What Is Proper.

Washington, D. C.—"A Chinese woman would not think of exposing to the public gaze her bound feet, a lady of Yip would never be seen promouncing down the mud-but boulevard of her native village without her woeen necklace of bibisusa leaves though her grass skirt was her only garment, and the Mohammedan woman of a few years ago would not be seen without her veil.

"Modesty has a geography all its own," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society, in connection with the winter fashion decrees from Paris.

Keep Finger Tips Hidden.
"Alexander von Humboldt, who traveled extensively over the world known in the Eighteenth century, recorded in his travels that some of the central Asian peoples are reluctant to let any one see their finger tips. A traveler who visited the Alaska coast, in the same century, found that native women, after he had persuaded them to remove an ornament which made the lower part of the mouth protrude two or three inches, were greatly embarrassed.

"It seems paradoxical that clothes originated out of the desire for ornamentation rather than for warmth. Arabs of the hot deserts of Arabia and Africa are fully swathed in flowing garments, which only in part serve as protection from the heat, while the Patagonians, from the coldest portion of the South American continent, wear only the skin of one animal as a kind of windshield. Our word 'modesty' came from the Latin 'modus,' meaning measure or standard, and the clothing which was customarily worn therefore became our first conception of what was the proper, or modest thing to wear. Each of the world's peoples consequently has its own standards.

"The explorers who first came to American shores found that the Carib Indian women, who simply wore embroidered girdles, often appeared without this single garment, but they were never so remiss as to forget to paint their bodies with annatto, a red or yellowish-red dye. This constituted their idea of womanly modesty. One explorer reported in his journals that a woman of a tribe in Brazil, whose custom it was to go unclothed, had in some mysterious manner acquired a petticoat which she put on for special occasions, but it seemed to have the effect of making her thoroughly ill at ease.

"The Chinese women are among the most demure and modest in the world, but they wear trousers! And, furthermore, some of them would be horrified at the immodesty of a skirt.

"The beaches of American seaside resorts would pain the fine sensibilities of the Sumatra and Celebes savages who consider it highly improper to expose the knees.

The Snaggle-Tooth Mode.
"To one of the New Hebrides islands in the Pacific, a married woman can be modest only by being snaggle-toothed. Part of the wedding ceremony consists of relieving the lady of her two middle incisors by smashing them with a rock.

"Some of the Mohammedan women of the Sahara region will tear off their last garment to cover their faces upon the approach of a stranger. The demure Breton maiden wears a cunning little close cap, because it would be dreadfully immodest to uncover her hair. Sturdy German peasant women paddle around their homes and fields in dresses that just escape their knees, but they would be shocked at the idea of wearing a dress which was open at the neck.

"In the Tonga islands a man would consider himself thoroughly unprepared to appear before his fellow mortals unless he was tattooed, and the Marquesans follow much the same practice, varying with the rank of the individual, but the legs are always tattooed from ankle to thigh. Warriors have themselves done in geometrical designs with squares and inverted triangles on their faces, and the women are ornamented in patterns which resemble fine lace work. Some of them wear loin cloths and girdles of tapa cloth, a fabric made from the bark of the breadfruit tree.

"An American lady of 1924 is not self-conscious at exposing her arms and shoulders in the evening, but she would be shocked at wearing a demure gown to breakfast or lunch. Condemned grandmothers, who represent to us the personifications of modesty, wore their sleeveless and neckless dresses all day."

Paris Men Hire Airplane to Get to Their Offices

Paris.—The air is the only traffic area in Paris that is not badly congested nowadays, and four business men of St. Denis, the northeastern industrial section, who live in the southwestern residential section, have combined to hiring an airplane to make the seven-mile trip between their homes and offices. Neither by automobile, subway nor omnibus, they say, can they get across Paris in less than an hour, while by air it is a ten-minute jump.

HIGHLAND

Highland, Dec. 4.—Mrs. F. Lane has been spending a short short time in New York city.

The Auxiliary Club will hold their meeting December 12 instead of December 5, the regular day, as the club holds a bazaar and entertainment on that evening in the M. E. Church lecture room. The meeting will be held in M. E. Church parlor and besides regular business, election of officers will take place. Every member should be present. Mrs. H. W. Maynard is chairman of the hostess committee. Other hostesses will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Clearwater were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Schoonmaker at New Paltz.

Allen Atkins, Mrs. Carrie Atkins, Miss Effie Atkins and Ethel and Evelyn Atkins were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Deyo Atkins at New Paltz on Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. John K. Fisher had as their guests recently Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fisher and children from Ohioville.

Mrs. Emily Davis and son, LeVane, were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis in Poughkeepsie.

Miss Suzanne Lent of Richmond Hill was a holiday guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lent on Grand street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lent and family were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Warring at New Paltz.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Lent had as their guests for the holiday, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lent and daughter, Miss Suzanne Lent, at their home on Milton avenue.

Brims of interest and enthusiasm was the sermon last Sunday evening at the M. E. Church by the Rev. Richard Braunstein, pastor, his subject being "Glimpses of Famous Women." This was the evening set aside for the Daughters of America to attend services in a body. A large number were present. The church was nicely decorated with the national colors and the order presented a fine appearance as they marched in with color bearers and officers gowned in white with their emblematic regalia. The choir sang nicely under leadership of H. E. Wilcox, the organist. Prof. Kuhne of Poughkeepsie rendered his organ numbers in excellent style.

The Thompson family who lived in A. W. Lent's house on Wilcox avenue, moved last week to Milton.

S. Hunter and family of Milton, have moved to Grand street. Mr. Hunter has a plumbing establishment on Main street.

Miss Bertha Dimsey was in Lloyd Sunday, attending the funeral of Mrs. Mary L. Halstead.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dimsey attended Mrs. M. L. Halstead's funeral. Mrs. Lillian Upright and Captain R. H. Decker also attended at her late home at Lloyd on Sunday.

F. L. Metcalf has sold his home and lot on White street to Jack LaFalco and also some other lots. Mr. Metcalf will spend the winter in Florida.

C. C. Whitaker has now purchased a lot next to J. R. Melin's, and contemplates building soon.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Kurtz entertained a dinner party of relatives Thanksgiving.

The Rev. Richard Braunstein, pastor of the Methodist Church, preached at the union service in the Presbyterian Church on Thanksgiving eve.

Large delegation of members of Ida McKinley Council, D. of A. of this place, were in Saugerties Friday evening, November 28, for a visit to Imperial Council. It was their eighth anniversary. After their work they had a sketch which was very funny, the parts being taken by their members. C. DuBois gave dramatic readings which were enjoyed. Piano solos and duets and also vocal selections by the Smith sisters were nicely rendered. Short addresses were given by Mrs. Tobey, Mrs. Kurtz, Mrs. Conspituous repast was provided which morning all motored home.

Mr. and Mrs. George DuBois and family were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Theron DuBois, Maple avenue. They reside in Freeport, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Plass were in Hoboken, N. J., Thanksgiving, attending the wedding of a niece of Mr. Plass.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Jordan had a dinner party Thanksgiving. It was a family affair and was greatly enjoyed. Edward Patridge, Miss Emma Patridge, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hopper and two sons, Herman Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Jordan were those who sat at the festive board.

A regular meeting of Ida McKinley Council, D. of A., was held Wednesday evening, December 3. There was a large attendance. Election of officers took place. A fine social time was had. After the work refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held December 17. Hostesses for the Auxiliary Club on December 12 are Mrs. Harry W. Maynard, Mrs. Schoenfeld, Mrs. James Swift, Mrs. G. Harshorn. The meeting will be in the church parlor. Every officer is requested to be present.

Tuesday evening at the home of H. E. Wilcox the Sunday school held their business meeting, made plans for Christmas and transacted much important business. Afterward Mrs. Wilcox served dainty refreshments. Some of the people from this place will leave for the south after the holidays. They are anxious to get where it is warm.

Kellogg's Bran delights father by bringing health to children

Poor little kids—they needed bran badly. But they wouldn't eat ordinary bran. They didn't like them. Most folks don't. Then their father tried Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. What a difference! He told the story in his letter:

"Dear Sirs:
I wish to express my appreciation of your krumbled bran, which I have used for my children this summer. We had a great deal of trouble with them through constipation, and bran had been the most satisfactory remedy but they could not be induced to take the old variety. . . because they disliked them so. They enjoy the krumbled brand and consider it an essential ingredient of their porridge. No one whose children have not been troubled in this way can appreciate the relief there is in having their bowels move regularly."
(The original of this letter is on file at the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It should not be neglected. But do not try halfway measures in seeking relief. Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. And it takes ALL bran to be 100% effective. Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief, if eaten regularly, in the most chronic cases. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. The flavor is delicious. Sprinkle it on other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the recipes of every package. It will bring you health. Begin eating it to-day. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

MAY BE DIAMOND MINES IN CANADA

Geologists Are Sure There Is Gem-Bearing Rock in the Dominion.

Washington.—Recent discovery of diamonds in Canada has aroused new interest regarding the possibility of diamond mines in North America. If a great mine, like those of South Africa, has been found no report has yet been issued.

The Canadian finds would appear to be like those which have been made from time to time in the Great Lakes district of the United States. All through the last decade of the Nineteenth century the Great Lakes region enjoyed the excitement of occasional diamond discoveries. Eager treasure hunters explored the country hoping to find the mine from which the mysterious stones had wandered. Geologists worked out theories based on the scientific evidence, and expressed a hope that the mine would be found, and the opinion that it would be located in the north of Canada. Geologists of the United States government service say today that there is undoubtedly some diamond-bearing rock in Canada, and every diamond found is a clue to the missing mine.

The first stone from the Great Lakes region which attracted the attention of the country was brought to light in 1893. Seven years before, a farmer at Eagle, Wis., was digging a well, when he picked up a peculiar bit of stone. The little stone was dull like a piece of alum, and yet it had the appearance of a lustrous object veiled in a filmy coating. He gave the queer pebble to a woman tenant on the place, and she kept it seven years.

Then a Milwaukee jeweler came upon the scene and offered the woman a dollar for the queer stone. She thought this a good bargain and he went off with the stone in his pocket. An expert informed the jeweler that he had acquired a 15-carat diamond, worth some $300.

By this time the woman at Eagle had learned the facts of the case and offered the jeweler $110 for the suddenly valuable pebble. The jeweler refused to accept this 10 per cent profit and the woman sued him for the full value of the diamond. The State Supreme court finally decided that the jeweler did not know the true worth of the stone when he bought it and that therefore a dollar was a fair price for it. Later, Tiffany of New York, bought the uncut stone for his collection.

Found in Blue Clay. The Eagle diamond caused a great stir in its home town. The stone had been found lying loose in blue clay and a practical miner drew attention to the significant fact that the famous South African diamonds are embedded in blue clay. A diamond rush began. Two more sizable diamonds were picked up. Stock was sold and there was some mining done.

A diamond expert threw a bomb into this interesting situation by declaring that the two stones which appeared so soon after the Eagle diamond were South African diamonds and must have been "planted." He pointed out that diamonds are crystallized carbon and the crystals from one locality are often formed in peculiarly distinctive patterns. Soon the only trace of the Eagle boom was the Diamond hotel.

In the next fifteen years seventeen diamonds, large enough to be of real market value, were discovered here and there in the north central states. The largest of the stones weighed about twenty-one carats. It was picked up by a Wisconsin farmer while he was plowing a field in the spring of 1886. A fine six-carat stone was found by two little girls in Ohio in 1877. One of the diamonds, which had prominence in this period, had been kept by a farmer as a curio for ten years.

It was never thought likely that the diamond crystals were formed anywhere near the Great Lakes region. A stone came from the beds of the Ohio river, though most of the big diamonds have been picked up in the "blue" drift. None was attached to a matrix rock. The stones in this case are said to have been originally formed from the matrix in which they were formed and carried along natural forces until a river deposited them in a gravel bed where they remained until a farmer's plow brought them to light. Diamonds in the glacial drift have traveled hundreds of miles and were brought from the northern wilderness to the great ice flow last glacial period. The northern part of the United States

William H. Hobbs, prominent geologist, took a special interest in the problem which the mysterious stones presented, and tried to point out the clues to the original source. At the height of the ice flow's advance the ice from the Hudson bay region swept down to approximately the boundaries marked by the Missouri and Hudson rivers, and it was in this region that tons of drift material were dumped when the ice receded.

Find Minge of the Fan. This geologist explained that the ice flow was in the shape of a fan, and that the hinge of the fan would represent the starting point of the ice. By tracing back the probable routes of the drift containing the diamonds, he thought that some day the mine would be located. It was not certain that the diamonds came from one source, but he thought it likely, and he urged the public to make known each new diamond discovery, because it might be an important clue to the missing mine.

In recent years the matter has attracted less attention. But where the glacial drift was deposited there may still be scattered diamonds. Doctor Hobbs went so far as to say: "It is likely that for every diamond found there are a thousand still undiscovered in the drift."

Most of the diamond discoveries in the United States have been surrounded by the same scientific mystery regarding their original home. Indiana is credited with being the first section of North America to produce a diamond. There are no known diamond mines about that section, but white diamond weighing two carats when cut was picked up in 1837.

Since 1850 several hundred diamonds have been found in California streams by gold miners. In the Southeast, from Virginia to Georgia, more than a dozen notable diamond discoveries have been made.

Diamonds have been picked up in at least fourteen states, though only one state, Arkansas, has as yet claimed real diamond mines. Since 1906 the Arkansas mines have yielded more than 5,000 diamonds weighing from 1-250th of a carat to 423 carats. A great American diamond mine, or mines, may turn out to be in the United States or in Canada, or the source rock may be hidden beyond man's reach. There is not much use hunting for diamonds or prospecting vaguely for such a mine.

Geologists say, however, that any one who finds a stone resembling a diamond in the rough should examine it closely before tossing it away. When the Great Lakes discoveries held the attention of science, Doctor Hobbs made a few suggestions for persons finding such stones. Diamonds, he said, never appear in thoroughly rounded form like the ordinary pebbles because they are too hard to be worn by contact. Diamonds always show distinct forms of crystals, and the crystals have rounded surfaces, very different from the surface of quartz crystals.

Hardness is the main test. A harder substance always scratches a softer and a stone which cannot be scratched by emery is of sufficient interest to be submitted to a competent mineralogist. Incidentally, it might be added that a diamond is not fireproof and hardness does not prevent its being brittle. A hot flame can destroy a diamond of great value, and a sharp blow to test a stone's hardness may crack it and prove nothing.

Ancient College Custom

A person who fails to pass an examination is said to have been "plucked." This meaning of the word has a curious origin. In olden days when degrees were conferred in Oxford two proctors marched solemnly down the hall and back. Tradesmen with grievances—namely, unpaid bills—would sit on the benches and pluck the proctor's gown as he passed. If the bill was big enough and the tradesman proved his case, the undergraduate was refused his degree. Hence the term "plucked," which, now that its origin is forgotten, is used for failing in examinations of any kind. The proctors still march up and down the hall, but of course their gowns are no longer plucked.

A Lifetime Regret Which Your Grief Need Never Feel

The Catacombs
On the Appian Way—near Rome, used as a place of internment and burial by the early Christians. Secured by their natural rock-hewn protection through the centuries, the Catacombs can offer no finer care than is available to every family that selects a Champion Air-Sealed Vault of Copper-Steel.

It is not strange that in the hour of sorrow, those who mourn should overlook doing the things which their calmer afterthought would demand.

That is why we should think now—before the need comes—of the sacred matter of properly caring for our dead.

A life-time of regret may be easily avoided and a comforting assurance felt through all the years that follow grief, if we provide burial protection of absolute security.

Champion Air-Sealed Vaults remove every possible doubt. Made of heavy-gauge Copper-Steel, they completely resist outside pressures, and defy rust, and the simple act of placing the cover in position, automatically seals the contents securely against any possible entrance of water, even though completely submerged.

Champion Vaults have been in use for nearly 40 years. Disinterment has conclusively proven our right to claim complete permanent burial protection.

Time cannot crumble
Weight cannot crush
Rust cannot consume
Water cannot penetrate

Your local funeral director is prepared to provide this perfect burial protection.

HIGH WOODS.

High Woods, Dec. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Short of Saranac Lake returned Monday, after spending the past week at his sister's, Mrs. Robert Denhardt.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shader entertained relatives Thanksgiving in honor of the seventh birthday of their son, Charles. A beautiful dinner was served. The birthday cake was best of all, was the opinion of the children. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Winifred E. Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shaker, Edward Snyder, Edna Shader, Carl Shader, Laver Snyder, Anna C. Shader, Charles Shader. A pleasant evening was spent by all.

The school children are having happy hours consisting on the hill. Mrs. Leroy Lonsdale, Mrs. Nathan Carl, Mrs. Emma York, Mrs. Jason Longmire and Mrs. Annanda Felsen were callers upon their cousin, Mrs. E. H. Terpening, at Ulster Park one day last week.

Mr. Kohnward of New York is spending a few days at her cottage here.

J. Krom of Jamaica, Long Island, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with his family here. Mrs. Krom returned with him to Jamaica for the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Acherman entertained some relatives from Saugerties on Sunday.

Mrs. Elmer Snyder is ill at the home of her son, Oscar, in Saugerties, with an attack of erysipelas.

The Rev. E. Hunt gave an excellent sermon Sunday on "Patiently Waiting God's Time," from the text, Acts 1:4.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Felton and his mother, Mrs. Amanda J. Felton, spent Thanksgiving Day at S. Delaney's, Barclay Heights, Saugerties.

The Misses Julia and Gertrude Lamb of Saugerties called on Doris A. Snyder last Wednesday, bringing with them chrysanthemums. Dr. Gifford has removed the stitches from her injured knee, which is healing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cass of Woodstock attended church services Sunday; also Addison Herrick and sister, Anna, of Pine Grove.

Mr. Hactman went to New York to enter a hospital on Tuesday. Communion service will be held at the church on December 7th. The elders and deacons elected will also be installed Sunday at 1 p. m. Preaching at 2 p. m.

BLOOMINGTON.

Bloomington, Dec. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smaden and little son of Paterson, N. J., spent the past week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Smaden.

Miss Mildred Cogswell is visiting relatives and friends in Connecticut and Massachusetts until after the holidays.

The Sunday school is busy preparing for its Christmas entertainment which will be held on Tuesday evening, December 23.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Smaden of New York City spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Smaden.

A. E. Russell, who had his hand and leg badly burned fighting fire at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Welch, is much better. They wish to thank all their friends and neighbors who helped fight the fire and save their home. Their garage and car and woodshed were destroyed.

Mrs. L. Hoffman and son of Creek Locks returned to her home on Sunday morning, after spending a few days and over Thanksgiving Day with her husband and relatives in New York City.

George Smith and Peter Relsenberg of Kingston spent Sunday with Mr. Smith's mother, Mrs. Mary Smith, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Van Wagonen and son and daughter of Kingston spent Thanksgiving Day with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Castor.

Communion services on Sunday morning at 9:45 in the church. Everybody invited.

Kantowitz Five Organized. The Kantowitz Five has organized for the season and has the following players on its roster: Spall, Dolson, Johnson, Dingle, Buchholtz and Stock.

Players have had considerable experience on the court and should make a good showing. On December 6, at Liberty, the Kantowitz Five will swing into action. Manager Kantowitz is anxious to hear from all teams in the city.

ZENA.

Everett Fowler
Talks on Kingston

The December meeting of Whit-tyck Chapter, D. A. R., was held at the Chapter House on Thursday af-ternoon. Two new members were brought into the chapter, being trans-ferred from the National D. A. R. as members at large. They were Mrs. Helen Ayres of Woodstock and Mrs. Isabelle Fitch Ellis of this city.

The chapter received a very hand-some loan in the shape of a beautiful sideboard of Revolutionary period from J. Rudolph Tappen. This brings this old sideboard back to its original home.

It was decided that the chapter should in some way appropriately celebrate Washington's birthday. The speaker for the afternoon was Everett Fowler, whose subject was "The Founding and Early Develop-ment of Kingston." Mr. Fowler said he had been called a man with a hobby and he admitted the designa-tion and named that hobby "King-ston." He now has in his possession some four or five hundred accurate and historic photographs of old Kingston houses, etc. Mr. Fowler expressed himself as indebted to the late Marcus Schoonmaker and to an address delivered by the late Gen. George H. Sharpe in Voorhees Hall, for much of his historical data.

In connection with the founding and early development of Kingston, Mr. Fowler noted the city's three names: Athahacton, (Indian), Wiltwyck and Kingston. He had with him blue prints showing the first streets of Kingston, most of which retain their original names, and especially those within the stockade. A fact unknown to most was that at the spot where the First Dutch Church now stands was what was called the "Stocado," or actual fortifi-cation of the stockade. Mr. Fowler told of the Guard House, later "Billy Hamlin's" where the Burge-vin Flower Shop is now. To a book written by the Rev. John Miller, the speaker said he was indebted for much of the account of the stockade and stockade.

The first post office, so far as is known, was in the Van Valkenburgh house, the little stone house directly opposite the Chapter House on Crown street. At one time there was a pub-lic market where "The Bryant" now stands, and there was at one time a district school where now stands the Home for the Aged. One of the houses in Kingston not burned by the British, according to Mr. Fowler, was William Hayes property on Albany avenue. At that time it was the property of "Alderman Loefferts."

Mr. Fowler also stated that King-ston might have been not only the capital of New York state, but of the nation, but for its lack of liberality. It was willing to donate to congress one mile square, but congress did not think that the grant should have been less than two miles square and Kingston lost its chance. In addition to his very interesting address, Mr. Fowler had many pictures to show. The afternoon closed with the usual social hour, the hostesses being Mrs. William Lawton and Mrs. T. V. R. Brown.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Dainty House or Day Dress.

4566. House and home duties will be pleasant in a frock such as is here portrayed. It will make a splendid business dress in wool crepe or silk poplin, or a trim and pleasing morning dress in printed crepe or tingham with contrasting material for the bosom, collar, cuffs and pockets.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38 inch size, as illustrated, will require 4 1/2 yards of figured material and 3 yards of plain material 22 inches wide. The width at the foot with plain extended is 2 1/4 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 25c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department. The Freeman, King-ston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notes.

Sand 10c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date fall and winter 1924-1925 Book of Fashions, showing color plates, and containing 200 designs of ladies' dresses and children's patterns, a costume and comprehensive article on dressmak-ing, also some prints for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

GOOD

DETERMINE EXPENSE OF ROAD BUILDING

Too often, when road improvements are contemplated, first cost is the only item considered. There are other items which must be taken into con-sideration before deciding the type of road to be built. The amount and character of the traffic which may rea-sonably be expected to pass over the road during its lifetime should be de-termined as near as possible, so the life of the pavement may be estimated. If more than 500 vehicles a day travel on road, it should be paved, between 500 and 100 vehicles per day, a gravel-graded road will serve. Less than 100 vehicles a day can be most cheaply served by dirt roads. The entire maintenance cost during the life of a pavement plus the first cost will de-termine the actual cost of the improve-ment. This, divided by the number of years the pavement will last, will be the true guide which will point out the most economical type of paving.

Because of its low maintenance cost and its long life, concrete is an eco-nomical type. The high maintenance costs of the old style pavement will make its actual yearly cost far more than that of a concrete pavement. There are certain items of main-tenance common to all roads, whether improved or unimproved. Cutting weeds, cleaning ditches, repairs to shoulders, guard rails and similar items are to be expected in maintain-ing all types of road construction.

The maintenance of the wearing surface of the road, however, will vary the type of road built. In paved, hard surfaced roads such as concrete, this item of maintenance is almost a negligible factor, and the items com-mon to all roads are those which make up the bulk of the cost.

In the old style "improved" roads, however, the maintenance of the sur-face is by far the most important item. Modern traffic tears up the old style road and continually necessitates large expenditures to repair the wearing surface and keep it in passable con-dition. With such a surface the un-avoidable items of maintenance fade into insignificance before the vast sums expended to maintain its sur-face.

The savings in maintenance costs on a concrete road will soon pay the dif-ference in first cost and will actually save money every year thereafter for the community. It is the poorest kind of economy to build roads that wear out in a few years. The staggering maintenance costs that pile up with this type of construction will soon lead a community into financial dif-ficulties. Especially is this true when such construction is paid for by bond issues maturing many years hence.

The only method of reducing main-tenance costs is to build the roads in such a way that they will have per-manency and low cost of upkeep.

What is said to be the longest straightaway of concrete is the 63 miles between Anoka and Belle Prairie, Minn. While this is not the longest stretch of paved roads in ex-istence it is the longest of one pave-ment type, and gives an insight into the concrete paving program that is being carried on in all parts of the country.

For many years California led all other states in this type of paving. In recent years, however, the Middle West has come into the good roads limelight with Illinois in the lead and voting at the coming election on an-other issue of $100,000,000. The East which started its program only a few years after California began building concrete is progressing in good shape. New York and Pennsylvania are the two leaders in this section. Penn-sylvania passed a $50,000,000 road bond issue in 1918 and last year another $50,000,000 road bond issue was passed, and is to be invested as was the one previously. Aside from the expenditure of these road bond issues, Pennsylvania annually expends about $17,500,000 on her roads from current revenues collected through automobile license taxes and fees and gasoline tax.

In the South, North Carolina is the leading road building state. Hun-dreds of miles are being built annually to connect the rich farming lands of this section with the trade centers, and also to provide tourist routes to the mountain resorts in the eastern part of the state.

In Easy Communication

The 91 Jewish colonies of Palestine, 41 of which owe their development to the Palestine foundation fund, are now all in easy communication with the cities through the motor lines and new roads, thus affording them excellent opportunities for the prompt disposal of their products.

Use "German" Concrete

Concrete similar to that used in Germany for gunpits during the World war will be used by the state road commission in repairing concrete roads in Maryland. Tests just completed show that the new cement hardens within 24 hours to a strength equal to the standard cement formerly used. This latter requires hardening for 28 days before it may be used. Use of the new cement will allow repairs to be made without prolonged closing of roads required.

How Chrysler Sweeps
All Tradition Aside

No one need fear that he will not be rewarded who gives to the world something distinctively superior to that which has preceded it. And nowhere is recognition so swift and reward so munificent as in America. Chrysler Six came into a seemingly crowded motor car market and almost immediately swept its way into unpre-cedented acceptance as a quality prod-uct. That which ordinarily takes years to achieve was won almost over-night.

Why? Because the Chrysler brushed aside outworn traditions in engineer-ing, in design, and in performance, and gave to the world advantages it squarely confronted problems of height and weight and size, solving them according to the crying needs of the moment rather than the needs of five years ago. It brought to bear both scientific exactness and artistry—endeavoring to embody in the new car elements of grace and elegance no one else had attained. That is why the Chrysler has taken the country by storm—why it still stands and will long stand alone—why if you want what the Chrysler gives, the Chrysler alone can satisfy you.

Plan for Laying Out Panel Front

Finding Correct Position for Various Holes Usually Hard Task.

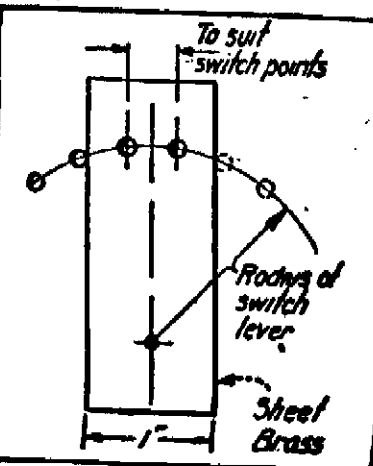

Laying out the panel often proves to be the hardest task in building a set. Finding the correct position for the condenser, variometer and switch point holes is usually the hardest of the lot. Unless a template is included in the boxes in which the instruments are sold the constructor must find some way to mark the panel. Many a condenser is mounted with only two and sometimes one screw holding it. There are many methods of finding the correct markings for the mounting holes of the condensers. A few of these will be listed herein. A piece of stiff cardboard may be forced over the shaft and holes carefully made where the mounting screw holes meet the cardboard. This forms an accurate template.

If the condenser has protruding screw mountings, then these may be given a coat of white paint around the inside edge and the shaft pushed through the shaft hole in the panel. The mountings are then pressed to the panel gently but firmly and the condenser pulled away quickly. This will leave three holes as guides for the drilling.

If the screw mountings are flush with the end plate of the condenser then the screws can be screwed partly into the end plate and a coat of white paint applied to the tops around the edge. These three methods of making templates can be applied to variometers, couplers, rheostats, potentiometers or any apparatus that must be mounted on a panel.

But for mounting switch points a special method must be used. A strip of 1-18 inch sheet brass is procured at least one inch longer than the radius of the switch blade. This piece of brass should be prepared according to the diagram. The bottom hole is placed inside the hole that has been drilled for the switch lever. This hole, both in the template and in the panel, should not be large. The panel hole can be redrilled after the holes have been marked for the points.

The two holes at the top of the template are laid out with the aid of the switch points that are to be used. The distance from the bottom hole to these two is the radius of the switch lever. The bottom hole should be in the center of the one inch wide brass strip and these two holes on either side of the center line on the strip. The distance apart will be governed by the size of the switch points.

By inserting a nail or some other straight round object through the hole in the template and through the panel the template will move around in a circle that will bring the holes at the top in the correct position for drilling for the switch points. Hold the template solid and drill for the first point. When move the template up until one hole in the template covers the hole drilled and the next switch point hole can be drilled by using the next template hole.—New York Sun.

Sound Volume Is Less With Loose Coupling

Many fans know that a single-circuit receiver is regarded as one of the worst types of radiating receivers—that is, receivers which send out radio waves of their own and thus spoil concerts for operators of receiving sets in the neighborhood of at least five city blocks.

But not all fans are aware of the fact that tightly coupled double and triple circuit sets are just as bad (if not worse) radiators of radio waves. Tightly coupled circuits are circuits in which the induction coils (such as the rotor and stator of a variocoupler, etc.) are very close together—that is, the "clearance" between them is very small.

The closer the coupling between the coils, the less likelihood of radiation and also the more selective the tuning of the set. Of course, it is also true that the sound volume is less with loose coupling than with tight coupling.

Study how to reduce the evil of radiation.

Large Dial Best

Three-inch dials are about as small as will afford suitable grip for operating and four-inch dials are better. Even a three and a half-inch is better than the smaller size. If small dials are used, however, the principal tuning control ought to have a large dial and knob. Fine adjustment is impossible with a tiny knob.

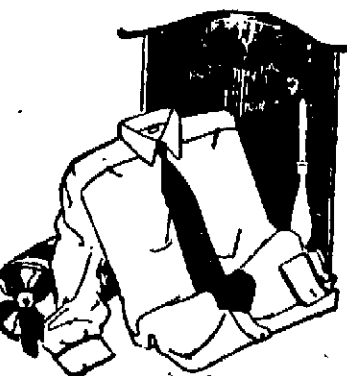

Producer's Plans Upset

Lasher Heads Kiwanis Club

Charles A. Lasher Is Elected President of Local Kiwanis Club—Dr. Van Gaasbeck Gives Interesting Talk.

At the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club held Thursday at the M. C. A. officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Charles Lasher, vice president, C. A. Bantz, treasurer, J. K. Gifford, district treasurer, William Van Valkenburg, directors, the Rev. William Smith, J. L. Eastman, Max Robson, Arthur A. Davis, Dr. J. Holcomb, Clarence Howland and Walter Hinkel.

A number of committees were also appointed at this time, including those for the Community Christmas tree, and Christmas cheer for the inmates of the institution for Defective Delinquents at Nanuet.

Arrangements were made for a rental to be given in the late part of January by a Metropolitan Opera group.

The Near East Relief was discussed and it was suggested that a Golden Rule collection be taken at the next meeting.

Dr. C. B. Van Gaasbeck was the principal speaker at the luncheon. He recently returned to this city from the Virgin Islands, where he was stationed for a number of years, being connected with the navy. The doctor gave a very interesting talk on the tropical life of the islands, and described the living conditions, government and the products.

Pa on Winter

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

A WINTER now what like the one we used to have when me and mother
Got out of school and first begun
To run around with one another,
Who hears of slighted parties now?
Or hay rides out to country dances?
Life ain't the same, no way no how—
And yet they say the world advances.

Not only livin' ain't the same—
We haven't even got the weather;
A winter now is rather tame,
And differently altogether
We used to take the girls and go
A-skatin' on the frozen river,
And wash their faces in the snow,
And laff and yell to see em shiver.

Them winter days was full of joy,
Them winter nights was full of latter,
And ev'ry girl and ev'ry boy
Remembers them forever after.
Lord, how a fellow's head was light
With things he didn't dare to utter
When on some certain Sunday night
He drove her somewhere in a cutter!

Them good old days are dead and gone;
Not feet of snow we have, but inches—
No more of blizzards at the dawn
Or nights of starry frost that pinches.

Old age must set beside the fire,
Where ruddy red the coal is gleamin',
And know old joy and old desire,
But know 'em only in our dreamin'.

Mother's Cook Book

Except living man there is nothing more wonderful than a book! A message to us from the dead—from human souls who never saw who live perhaps thousands of miles away. And yet these, in those little sheets of paper, speak to us, arouse us, terrify us, teach us, comfort us, open their hearts to us as brothers.—Charles Kingsley.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

WHOLESALE food should be the uppermost thought of the housewife who is interested in the health of her family. Greens are good at any season of the year, and may be made the feature of a meal once or twice a week.

Onion Stuffed Apples.
Pare and core six tart apples. Place in a frying pan three tablespoonfuls of bacon fat, add to this three-quarters of a cupful of chopped onion, cook until a delicate brown. Season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar and a dash of paprika. Add one-half cupful of soft bread crumbs and fill the cavities of the apples with this mixture. Sprinkle the apples lightly with sugar and bake until they are tender. Serve with roast pork.

Rocheester Ginger Bread.
Cream three-fourths of a cupful of butter, add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, three eggs, beaten; one and one-half cupfuls of sour milk and one and one-half cupfuls of molasses. Sift together four cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of soda, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of ginger. Combine the two mixtures and bake in two breadpans. Sliced and served with whipped cream this makes a nice dessert.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN HOWLAND

MOST of a man's trouble in life are caused, not by love, but by his mistakes in diagnosing it. Most men are so apt to confuse the symptoms of spring fever with the symptoms of the love fever.

Of course, a man doesn't believe everything flattery that a woman tells him; but that doesn't lessen the effect with which he repeats it to the next woman.

The first deception wounds a woman's heart, the second breaks it, the third mends it—and all the rest simply harden it.

One reason why a bachelor grows so morose in his old age is that he sees all through life with his heart bumping along on skid-chains.

Some husbands act as though they believed that all the compliments in the world were copyrighted, and it would be dangerous to use them.

A man who divorces his conscience, and a woman who divorces the conventions are the highest alimony payers in the world.

A woman often places how she will make a man suffer; but a man can make a woman suffer just by acting naturally.

The motto of the Sapper appears to be, "First come, first killed."
(© by Bruce Wallace)

Origin of Bachelor
The word "bachelor" is derived from an old word for "unwed." A bachelor, or unwed, stood lowest in the social scale, and the term there came to be applied to men who had not yet reached the full dignity of manly responsibility.

FLEEING BRIDE ELUDES CHASE

MRS. DOROTHY MARTIN HILLMAN

Mrs. Dorothy Martin Hillman, wife of Edward J. Hillman, Jr., millionaire Chicago department store owner, fled to New York after a month of married life following a notorious quarrel with her husband. She declared she was going to Europe to escape her "nasty little husband." He asked the police to apprehend her, but she eluded them.

ORDERS CLEAN-UP IN SCHENECTADY, N. Y.

Taking a cue from Philadelphia Mayor William W. Campbell has begun a spectacular clean up in Schenectady, N. Y., following the murder of Acting Police Captain Albert Youngman, head of the Vice Squad, for his activities against organized vice in Schenectady's underworld. Arthur Springer, an engineer was stabbed to death a few minutes before when he went to the rescue of two girls accosted on the streets. Mayor Campbell's first act was to demand the resignation of Police Chief James W. Ryan, who has controlled the Schenectady police force for forty years, and to order Detective James Flannagan to clean up the city and to shoot to kill if necessary.

Sky Problems That Are Puzzle to Scientists

Scientists have weighed the planets, the sun, and the moon; we know the distance of stars whose light takes centuries to reach us, and we can even measure accurately the minute amount of heat given by distant stars. For all that, the sky is still full of puzzles which astronomers are attempting to solve.

Take, for instance, the problem of dark stars. Possibly it has never occurred to you that there are such bodies, yet for every bright star you can see on a clear night there must be thousands which have gone cold and are therefore invisible. Yet, dead as they are, they are still plunging through space at appalling speed.

On February 2, 1901, there blazed out in the constellation of Perseus a star of amazing brilliance. It was not, of course, a new star. What had really happened was that one of these dark stars had either hit another, or, perhaps, struck one of the big gas clouds which hang in space. The result was an explosion on a scale we cannot even imagine.

These dark stars and gas clouds are among the greatest of sky puzzles. It is only three years ago that a Dutch scientist discovered a mass of 100,000,000,000,000 miles in length and twice that distance from us, as it were. It may be gas, it may be dust. We do not know and probably never shall.

Odd Harvest Customs Observed in England

In speaking of harvest customs, it is remembered that "harvest" is a word which in England is used to designate the time of the year when the crops are gathered in.

This was then tied up and trimmed to represent a doll, and was called the "Corn-Baby." It was brought home in triumph, set up in a conspicuous place at supper, and often kept in the farmer's parlour for the rest of the year. In other parts of the country the doll was supposed to be a representation of Ceres, the goddess of fertility. In Hertfordshire the doll was called a "Mare," and the response would throw their sticks at it, crying: "I have her, I have her!" "What have you?" the others would say. "A mare!" "A mare!" was the answer. This custom, called "Crying the Mare," refers to the time when the corn, being green in open spaces, was often trampled down and spoiled by wild mares. In Devonshire the last in a full was called the Nock, and the "crying" consisted of the one word "Nock." This was supposed to signify "our Nock," and hence even to origin to the same idea as "Crying the Mare."

Norse Gave Name to Ship

The word "smack" is fishing smack is of Norse origin. The Danes and Norwegians called their vessels "smak-lar" or "shak-lar." These were long, lean galleys, and the resemblance was further suggested by the dragon's or eagle's head which often formed their figure-head. Later on in history, when the Dutch became the great seafaring people, the word passed into their language, slightly altered (to suit their tongue) to "smak." The Dutch boat was of different build being fat and broad-beamed. We in turn took the word from the Dutch, and turned it into our own smack, using it at first for the small sailing cutter which used to run as a sort of passenger tender for the fishing ships. Now, when steam is almost universal, we confine the word almost entirely to the fast, sleek, gun boat which works by mail.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service)

LONG AND VARIED MILITARY CAREER

Joseph Warren Bartlett, newly appointed judge advocate of the Massachusetts department of the American Legion, has been very active in the Legion and has had a long and varied military career, beginning in 1901. Member of Newton post of the Legion, Mr. Bartlett was chairman of the Massachusetts department committee on unemployment in 1923.

Serving in the Massachusetts National Guard from 1901 to 1916, Mr. Bartlett rose from a private in the First Corps Cavalry to major in the inspector general's department. He was on the military staff of Gov. E. N. Foss in 1911-1913 and instructor in the Harvard regiment from 1916 to 1918. He entered the service of the United

Joseph Warren Bartlett.

States in December, 1918, and later became judge advocate in the Seventh division of the American expeditionary forces. He was discharged in July, 1919.

He was admitted to the practice of law in 1901 and is now senior member of the firm of Bartlett, Jennings & Smith. He was a member of the city government of Newton from 1911 to 1913. He served as city solicitor of Newton from 1920 on. He was civil service commissioner of Massachusetts in 1920 and 1921.

Bonus Bureau Assists in Making Out Blanks

The American service committee's bonus bureau working at Hawthorne, Chicago, recently assisted 2,500 Hawthorne ex-service men in filing their adjusted compensation applications.

The bonus bureau's files show that, in addition to handling the large number of compensation claims, it took care of six disability cases; pulled 19 desperate veterans out of the hole who had lost their discharge papers; furnished information to 29 applicants concerning government insurance and rendered service to numerous parents and beneficiaries of deceased veterans. Some of these latter cases were as far remote as Poland and Italy.

Twenty-five hundred ex-gobs, dough-boys and leathernecks, subjected to the ordeal of "making out" the somewhat baffling compensation blank, displayed idiosyncrasies ranging from the pathetic to the hilarious. Veterans from all ranks and stations in life passed before the bureau's desks. A general, a lieutenant colonel and several majors filed by with the "bucks." Three army nurses who had given first aid under shellfire and two ex-service men who held congressional medals were among the applicants. One man had his wife sign as a witness and intended to get his brother's signature for the same purpose. "Why not?" he argued. "They both know me." Another applicant, who was unmarried, designated his wife as a beneficiary; when questioned about it, he explained he intended to get married some day. One battered and scarred veteran had been married so long he could not recall his wife's maiden name.

Nicholas Stankovitch, Youngest Legionnaire

The highest decorated man in the Serbian army recently added a new distinction to his list when he placed his name, Nicholas Stankovitch, on the rolls of the Springfield (Ohio) American Legion post, making him the youngest Legionnaire in the world, as he is not yet twenty-two years old. Stankovitch left Chicago in 1914 with his father at the outbreak of the World war, and being only twelve years old at that time. He was wounded by the same shell that mortally wounded his father. He was one of the 285 survivors of 30,000 Serbians who resisted the Austrian drive. The young lieutenant can speak and read in five languages. He has been searching among Serbian people for his mother from whom he has been separated by the events of the war.

SCORES PACIFICISM

A KEEN denunciation of pacifism was the subject of Rear Admiral William S. Sims' message to the American Legion national convention held in St. Paul recently, and said in part: "We deceive ourselves if we think that peace is assured for the immediate future. We must get the public to realize that if we attempt to muddle through another war as we have past contests the necessary loss of life will be terrible. You men of the Legion have experienced the horrors of modern war. You know too well the many sacrifices of valuable lives on land and sea that were the direct results of our unpreparedness for the great war. You know that owing to a lack of efficient organization we spent thousands of millions for ships and airplanes built too late to be of service, that due to lack of training we were in the war a year before we fired a shot on the western front. You may not know that our fighting forces have been subjected to the same conditions and been obliged to make the same sacrifices in all our wars. What Theodore Roosevelt called the 'hurrah of his tories' of your school days have not told our people the truth about our invariable unpreparedness and its disastrous results."

WAR AND PEACE TO BE BIG QUESTIONS

Problems of international war and permanent world peace will come in for much attention at the hands of the American Legion during 1925, as a result of the mandates laid down by the national convention held at St. Paul.

This does not mean, it was pointed out at national headquarters, that the Legion will diminish its activity in other lines which have engaged its attention constantly since its creation. National Commander James A. Drain has announced that the chief questions which will occupy the Legion during the coming year will be rehabilitation of the disabled veterans of the war, care of the orphans of those men who paid the supreme sacrifice in battle or who have died since the end of the conflict, and the manifold activities of the Americanism commission.

Questions of war and peace have merely been advanced by the action of the convention to the rank of leading activities of the Legion. Commander Drain was directed by the convention to appoint a world peace committee of ten members. This committee is to consult with other organizations, study their plans for peace, consider carefully the world situation as it is and then report to the convention at Omaha in 1925 the most practical plan for the Legion to work for peace among the nations.

By mandate of the convention, one of the major activities of the organization for 1925 will be work towards the passage of the universal service act which would give the government power to call men, money and materials into its service. In case of war, on equal terms. With the favorable reception which the policy has met and with its endorsement by the great political parties, it is expected that the bill now pending in congress will be passed in the very near future.

The Legion will also endeavor to get congress to take immediate measures to bring the navy up to an equality with the British in the 5-5-3 ratio of the Washington naval disarmament conference, and also to place the battle fleet on an equal footing with the British in gun range and power.

Further improvements in the United States veterans' bureau are demanded. The planning service and the central office board of appeals are strongly criticized. Dismissal of inefficient personnel is asked.

Officers of the national children's welfare committee are to be established at national headquarters. A joint committee of twenty-seven members is to be appointed by the Legion, the Forty and Eight and the Legion auxiliary to direct this work.

Numerous Mascots Left by Convention Delegates

An aftermath of the American Legion convention, held recently at St. Paul, which headed dismally to proclaim its loneliness, came to light after the Legionnaires had departed for their homes. Between parades during the convention the various state delegations parked their mascots with Dr. Elmer Berg, veterinarian, in his stables at the fair grounds. After the tumult was a thing of the past, Doctor Berg discovered he was the unwilling possessor of a fair-sized menagerie left behind by the delegates. Resolute roll call was answered by the following: Two eagles from South Dakota, one bear from Montana, four horses from Omaha, one jaguar from Wisconsin, one lion cub from Nevada and a non-descript assortment of dogs, addresses not known.

Disadvantage of Middle Age

Another thing about middle age, or worse, is that while you may admire the primrose along the path of life, you are not so much as ever, you don't feel so much like camping and pitching them. —Ole Stead Journal.

Leaped Forty Feet to Death

Westchester County Sanitarium Patient Jumped from Cross River Dam Despite Efforts of Attendant to Prevent His Suicide.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Katonah, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Investigation today by Coroner Fred Snowden of Peekskill into the suicide late yesterday of Edward Beardsley, 40, of Hartford, Conn., revealed that his attendant, Miss Helen McCormack, of New York city, made heroic efforts to prevent him from jumping from the Cross River dam into the spillway 40 feet below.

Beardsley, said to be an insurance company official, had for four weeks been confined to Dr. S. T. Armstrong's sanitarium on Bedford road. Attending physicians told Coroner Snowden that Beardsley had been improving and expected to leave for his home in a few days.

Yesterday he asked to go for a walk with Miss McCormack. When they reached the dam, a short distance from here, Beardsley jumped to the parapet, about four feet high. Miss McCormack pleaded with him to get down, and after a moment of thoughtful deliberation, he obeyed. They had walked but a few feet when he again ran towards the parapet. Miss McCormack seized him, but he threw her off. As he attempted to clamber up the wall Miss McCormack grappled with him. He knocked her to the road and leaped off, landing on the rocks below.

Beardsley's breakdown had been caused by financial worries, according to the sanitarium authorities.

Pay Penalty for Killing Officer

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Columbia, S. C., Dec. 5.—Frank Harrel, and Mortimer King, convicted of the murder of Major Samuel H. McLeary, U. S. A., after he had given them a ride in his automobile near Cheraw, S. C., were electrocuted in the state penitentiary here today.

Harrel was very nervous in the execution chamber, but King was calm, declaring himself "at peace with God and willing to meet death." "I don't mind dying," Harrel said, as he sobbed some hours before death, "but I want to live that I may tell the other fellows in the penitentiary of a God and a Christ."

King and Harrel confessed to the slaying of Major McLeary on July 2 last. His body was found only after the war department had instituted a search which extended throughout the southeast. King and Harrel were placed on trial in Chesterfield and sentenced to die on November 21. A petition signed by three hundred citizens of Chesterfield county and members of the jury which convicted the men was presented to Governor McLeod asking clemency. The governor refused to intervene.

Another Receiver

The woman who stood before the window in the bank was beginning to get a little restless. She had been standing in front of the receiving teller for a quarter of an hour and he seemed to be quite unaware of her presence—at any rate he took no notice at all of her.

At last she became too irritated to keep quiet another moment.

"Why don't you pay attention to me?"

"I'm sorry, ma'am, we don't pay anything here," was the short but polite reply. "Next window, please."

Dates From Pagan Times

Halloween is a relic of pagan times. In England the influence of Druidical ceremonies is evidenced in the ancient Halloween fires. Certain of the customs which used to prevail in England were survivals of Pomona, the goddess of fruit. Halloween is called by this name because the festival falls on the evening of October 31, which is the eve or vigil of All Hallows, the festival of All Saints, which falls on November 1.

Home Guard for Rum Runners

Recruited During War, Weehawken Men Patrol Water Front to Guard Against Illegal Importations From Rum Row.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 5.—With home guard members recruited during the war patrolling Weehawken's water front to guard against further importations of liquor from Rum Row vessels, the Hudson county grand jury was to meet here this afternoon to consider a request of Prosecutor John Milton for indictments against nine policemen and others alleged to have been involved in the landing of more than $50,000,000 worth of liquor during recent months.

More bench warrants similar to those upon which the policemen were arrested will be issued today, some for civilians, the prosecutor announced.

"We are after 'higher-ups' now," Milton said.

The defendants, one of them Captain Charles McNamee, boulevard police officer, are alleged to have superintended the landing of the liquor cargoes and to have provided a convoy for laden motor trucks, guarding against the peril of attacks by hijackers who are believed to have slain Frank D'Agostino, one of the alleged leaders of the traffic, some months ago.

Modern Cable-Repair Ship

A ship of a thousand wonders recently anchored in the Thames to be outfitted for duty as a deep sea cable repairer. She is the Cyrus Field, the latest cable ship built for the Western Union Telegraph company. Her unfamiliar gear attracts attention. It all has its uses in locating a damaged cable, picking it up, and facilitating repairs. There are ingenious range-finders, wireless direction-finding installations, the Sperry gyro compass, electric log and searchlights; while the ship can draw upon 170 miles of deep sea cable coiled in her tanks. The vessel has sufficient bunker capacity to enable her to remain at sea for at least six weeks. A twin-screw oil-burning vessel of 211 feet in length, the Cyrus Field is to be stationed at Halifax, Nova Scotia, but she has work to do nearer the Irish coast before she makes for her base.

Award Made for Total Disability

Compensation Commission Decides in Favor of Ellenville Man Who Was Crippled When Big Chimney Collapsed.

Oliver Rugar of Ellenville has been given an award by the compensation commission after a long legal battle which involved numerous hearings. The award carries with it $3,254.28 as back pay and in addition to doctor's bills and hospital costs he is given an award of $17.31 weekly for the rest of his life. Rugar has been classed as permanently disabled and the award is made on account of total disability. This award is one of the largest ever made in this county for injuries. In September, 1920, while engaged in assisting in the removal of a large brick chimney or smoke-stack at Dwight Divine & Sons of Ellenville on the old tannery property he was injured. The chimney was being taken down and Mr. Rugar was at work on a scaffold. Instead of the chimney falling as it had been planned, the mass of brick collapsed. Rugar was severely injured. The insurance company, the Utica Mutual, contended that Mr. Rugar's present condition was not due to the accident but to rheumatism or a blood condition. Since 1920, when Mr. Rugar was injured, there have been numerous hearings held. Judge Lounsbury of Judge William Cunningham's office has appeared throughout the case for Mr. Rugar and J. C. Smith of Troy appeared for the insurance company. In making the award the commission holds that the injuries sustained and now suffered by the plaintiff grew out of and in the course of his employment and that his injuries are permanent and total. As a result an award for back pay was allowed and an award for life of $17.31 per week was made. Since his injury on September 23, 1920, Rugar had been unable to work and permanently a cripple.

Murderer Wants Women Excluded

Man Who Confesses to Killing Fourteen People Does Not See How Women of Sense or Shame Can Attend His Trial.

Telegraph to The Freeman. Court Room, Hanover, Germany, Dec. 5.—Fritz Haarmann, the attic burglar, turned craven again today. In a hysteria of mingled threats and denunciations, Haarmann once more tried to shift the responsibility for his many murders on Hans Grans, the youth who helped him. "I won't bring him into it. He's young," had been Haarmann's plea toward his fellow defendant as he pictured himself as a hero before the trial opened. The men of his story today was that had been the instrument of Grans and the latter's pal, Witkowski. "When I'm soft, I can be led like a child," declared the killer who confessed at least fourteen murders and perhaps ten or twenty more, and admitted he chopped their bodies to pieces.

The public was excluded again when Haarmann detailed the killing of the first boy victim. He told how he sank his teeth in the boy's throat, where-like, while in a sort of trance. Then he fled from the room and remained away a week. "Six years after the first murder," Haarmann testified, "detectives had me under suspicion and they came and searched my room. They were there, fellows, poked here and there, questioned me, looked very serious and even studied the floor and wood work with a microscope."

Here the prisoner paused and laughed as though in anticipation of playing a good joke. "But," continued Haarmann, "as part as they were they overlooked the fact in which I had hidden the head of one of the boys I killed. The box was covered with bloodstains and I could not understand why they did not see it."

Haarmann then switched his testimony to the story of his first crime. A graphic was his description of his emotions and his reactions that day spectators in the crowded court room unconsciously rose to their feet. Their interest was tense. There were shouts of protest from some in the rear whose view thus was obstructed.

"I cannot tell you just how I did my first victim or why," Haarmann continued. "All I recall is that I went to bed as usual one night. My thoughts were peaceful and I had not even eaten anything which might have caused me to rise from my bed while still asleep. But when I awoke in the morning, the light was shining into my room and there was the body of a boy on the floor. A body horribly mangled." Haarmann again referred to his first accomplice, Grans, saying that always smelled of blood after the murders. He would go away and would remain away until he was called back. He was very careful to remain away after I had dismembered the body."

Haarmann's queer sense of morality disturbed the court. Turning to the judge he asked the crowd, who form the majority of the court, to be excluded from the trial. "I don't see how women of sense or shame can come to the trial was public and the judge could remain, adding, "The court must themselves decide if it is wise to listen to these horrible tales."

Completing Plans For New Hotel

Prints of Floor Plans Filed With Fire Department—Old Sharpe Home Early On New Foundation.

Architect George F. Lowe filed today with the fire department the prints of floor plans only, giving survey of fire exits for the new hotel which is to be erected on the large property at Albany and Clinton avenues. Mr. Lowe is not sure as soon the complete plans will be ready to distribute among contractors but from the present outlook they will be ready very shortly.

The old Sharpe residence is now being used on its new foundation and according to Jesse Phillips, superintendent in charge of the moving, will be completed by Wednesday of next week, weather permitting. He is the driving rainstorm a while back and the freezing and thawing snow and ice has made this job hard one. The building will be used over the foundation and the foundation built up to support the building.

Charges Against Game Protector

Game Protector Daniel R. Bacon of Goshen to Stand Trial in Monticello—Is Head of Shawangunk Fish and Game Protective Association.

Sensational charges have been preferred against Game Protector Daniel R. Bacon, of Goshen, for alleged violation of the state conservation law. It became known here on Thursday, says the Middletown Times-Press. The information has been a bombshell in the ranks of local sportsmen, as Mr. Bacon is president of the Shawangunk Fish and Game Protective Association, and has been active in game protection work and was a member of the legislative committee of the state association.

Deputy Conservation Commissioner Francis X. Disney of the state conservation commission at Albany, states the trial will be held at the court house in Monticello on December 9, and that the case would probably be tried before him.

The alleged evidence was collected and prepared in the office of Chief Game Protector Livell Legree. The charges allege violation of the conservation law, neglect of duty, conduct unbecoming an officer of the commission, and violation of the rules and regulations of the commission.

Noted Places in Realty Merger

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 5.—One of the biggest real estate consolidations in history is about to be effected by General T. Coleman Du Pont and N. S. WHEREVER the gray pine grows it is called "the unlucky tree," because it is supposed to bring bad luck to anyone who stands under it—especially to women.

This superstition is, apparently, a survival of the worship of the Phrygian god Attis, a worship introduced into Europe through the Greeks. Attis has been identified with the Greek god Adonis and by some, also, with the Egyptian Osiris. At any rate the Attis cult was a most ancient one and profoundly influenced European mythology. Attis was supposed to have met his death under a pine tree into which his spirit entered. At the festival of Attis, celebrated in the spring, a pine tree, the trunk of which was wrapped in wool, was brought into the sanctuary of Cybele and a young man tied to the tree trunk. Then the priests and the votaries gashed themselves until their blood covered the bound man. He was then unbound and the pine tree taken out and burned. Originally the bound man was sacrificed to represent the death of the god, but later it was sufficient that he was covered with blood. This will explain why it is "unlucky" to stand under the tree—the person so standing takes the place of the victim of the old ritual.

That the tree is especially unlucky for women is explained by the fact that the ancient rite took place in the temple of Cybele—the mother of the god who was slain in this incarnation—and also by certain orgiastic practices which characterized the sacrifice. That the superstition in question should linger about the gray pine and not other trees may be accounted for by suggestions of its color—the color of ashes to which the sacred pine of Attis was ultimately reduced—or possibly the color of the material used with which the trunk of the sacred pine was covered at the Phrygian festival. Also as the sacred pine of Attis was always burned so the principal use of the gray pine is for firewood.

FRIGHT FOR BILLY MOUSE

BILLY MOUSE was 'inquisitive,' there was no doubt about it. As soon as his father or mother came home after hunting in the pantry, Billy Mouse began to poke about to see what they had brought home for breakfast.

Then when he was taken out in the pantry for a run when his parents knew that Puss was not in the house, Billy Mouse always ran to the highest shelf and peeked into all the boxes. And once he crawled up behind some drawers and was caught fast until someone opened one and then he ran across the floor and Puss almost caught him.

One night when his father and mother had planned to explore the dining room to find birdseed for breakfast, Billy Mouse jumped out of his warm bed and ran out in the pantry all alone. "If I don't begin to go about myself I shall never grow up," said he. "Mother and father think I am a baby, but I shall show them I am able to take care of myself."

"How Did You Get Out Alive?" Mrs. Mouse Asked.

First, Billy Mouse found a meat pie which he nibbled at until he could eat no more. And then he should have run home. But not inquisitive Billy. He saw boxes and drawers to explore, so to the highest shelf he made his way and nibbled off the paper that was around a box to find what was inside. In the box was some wire that had been put in so tightly that when Billy Mouse made a hole in the box the end of the wire popped out and hit Billy on the tip of his nose and sent him tumbling over backward off the shelf. It was a good thing for Billy Mouse that the trap had been sprung or this would be the end of the story. But it had, so when Billy ran in head first he did not know that his tail and body were outside. He thought he was all hidden in the box.

By and by back came his father and mother from their hunting trip to the dining room, and there they saw Billy caught, as they thought, in the trap.

"Oh, my poor foolish child," squeaked Mrs. Mouse. "He is caught in a trap, and I had such a nice breakfast of birdseed for him, and now he will never eat anything again."

Mr. Mouse led his weeping little wife away, and then Billy, who had kept very still all the time, backed out of the trap, for he did not know he was in a trap, you see, until he heard his mother crying.

"I guess father and mother do not know how to get out of a trap," said Billy Mouse. "You just run in and run out. That is all there is to it."

But just then another silly little mouse ran into another trap and there he was fast. Billy Mouse heard one squeak and a click and off he ran for home.

Mrs. Mouse tumbled over in a faint when she saw her son. "How did you get out alive?" she asked when they had sprinkled her with water.

"Oh, I just backed out; that is all you have to do with some traps. I guess," said Billy, thinking of the poor little mouse that was caught in the other trap.

"You foolish boy," said his father. "Don't you know that trap had been sprung or you couldn't have got out?"

"But it is full of cheese, father," said Billy; "only I could not reach all of it."

Soon ran Mr. and Mrs. Mouse, and soon they came back with the cheese, and such a breakfast they had of birdseed and cheese. And while they were eating Billy Mouse said, "I guess I am big enough to hunt by myself now that I have found all of this cheese."

Wise Father Mouse always shook his head when Mrs. Mouse said that Billy knew which traps were safe to look into. "I never could make out how he found out that trap was safe. I wonder if something happened to drive him in there."

But Billy Mouse never told what happened on the top shelf. He kept to himself how he was cured of being inquisitive.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRDING KING

THE GRAY PINE

WHEREVER the gray pine grows it is called "the unlucky tree," because it is supposed to bring bad luck to anyone who stands under it—especially to women.

This superstition is, apparently, a survival of the worship of the Phrygian god Attis, a worship introduced into Europe through the Greeks. Attis has been identified with the Greek god Adonis and by some, also, with the Egyptian Osiris. At any rate the Attis cult was a most ancient one and profoundly influenced European mythology. Attis was supposed to have met his death under a pine tree into which his spirit entered. At the festival of Attis, celebrated in the spring, a pine tree, the trunk of which was wrapped in wool, was brought into the sanctuary of Cybele and a young man tied to the tree trunk. Then the priests and the votaries gashed themselves until their blood covered the bound man. He was then unbound and the pine tree taken out and burned. Originally the bound man was sacrificed to represent the death of the god, but later it was sufficient that he was covered with blood. This will explain why it is "unlucky" to stand under the tree—the person so standing takes the place of the victim of the old ritual.

That the tree is especially unlucky for women is explained by the fact that the ancient rite took place in the temple of Cybele—the mother of the god who was slain in this incarnation—and also by certain orgiastic practices which characterized the sacrifice. That the superstition in question should linger about the gray pine and not other trees may be accounted for by suggestions of its color—the color of ashes to which the sacred pine of Attis was ultimately reduced—or possibly the color of the material used with which the trunk of the sacred pine was covered at the Phrygian festival. Also as the sacred pine of Attis was always burned so the principal use of the gray pine is for firewood.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Read about your names in history's records; what it was derived from; the meaning your family has, today.

REGINA

THE queen of Heaven, Maria, has votaries called by the Italians Regina or Reina. Reina was found more frequently in Florence. In France, Regina became Reine and Reine, the former also being a favorite in Germany. All, of course, are translated to mean queen.

The natural conclusion would be that the name Regina is merely the Latin word for queen given a capitalized initial letter, but another explanation of its origin, and one most generally accepted, is that it is one of the many evolved from the Latin rego, meaning rule. If such is the case it has a history as full of adventure as an Arabian Nights and is indeed an heroic name for a woman to bear.

The first Regar was that hardy soul who, after ravaging France, was put to death in England, whereupon his fierce sons in revenge swept England with merciless devastation. His name therefore became a dread one and in some manner was changed to Rene. At once Rene became popular as a feminine name since the younger daughter of Louis XII of France bore it. When she married into the House of Este, her name was changed into Renata, a form which is very pleasing to the Spanish and Italian. The old Dutch form, Renira, is quaint and pretty. The Teutonic influence makes itself evident in Reigi and Reel.

The aquamarine is Regina's gem. Much superstition centers about the stone and it has therapeutic value, since by its pale color, it gives evidence of the bodily weakening of its wearer. It is even held that its color will stain the flesh against which it is worn as indication of some physical derangement. Thursday is Regina's fortunate day and her lucky number. The violet is her flower.

Supervisors Waive Costs

Case to Determine Conflict of Laws Resulted in Final Defeat of Clerk Who Sought Salary—Supervisors Declare Judgment Against Him Satisfied.

Reports of the committee on printing, on sheriff's accounts, and of the board of county auditors was principal business conducted by the board of supervisors at the Thursday evening session.

The committee on printing reported amount claimed, $21,597.80; amount allowed, $19,126.78. Also an addition $2,000 for printing enrollment of 1924. Filed.

The committee on sheriff's accounts reported amount claimed, $7,982.62; amount allowed, $7,728.21. Filed.

The board of county auditors reported they had purchased supplies for the various county offices and officers; made repairs to county buildings, situated in the city of Kingston; paid telephone, gas, electric light and water bills, and for repairs to trucks, tractors, operation, etc., for year from December 1, 1923, to December 4, 1924, inclusive as appears on abstract attached. Warrants payable by the county treasurer have been issued for following:

Court House	$ 7,341 06
County Jail	4,944 33
County Clerk Building	1,082 43
County Clerk as register	875 91
County Clerk as register	617 26

Additional Audits

Of December 11 and 14, 1923:
Court House	$ 126 17
County Jail	26 80
County Clerk Building	16 00
County Clerk as register	95 09
County Clerk as register	14 75
County Clerk as register	39 00
County Treasurer	15 00
Supervisors' expenses	23 60
Commissioner of Election	4 75

Total	$29,450 45
Balance, Dec. 5, 1923	1,069 10
Appropriation in 1923	20,000 00

Deficit on this fund	$ 8,381 35
----------------------	-------------

The deficit was caused because of increase cost of coal, to extraordinary repairs, and to operation of trucks, tractors, and pay of chauffeurs.

The committee requested that an appropriation of $8,381.35 be made to provide for overdraft and that a further appropriation of $20,000 be made for board of county auditors for year 1925. Received and filed.

The Simpson Case.

County Attorney John W. Eckert communication to the board, dated that in 1915 the board of supervisors fixed the salary of James Simpson, as clerk of the board of elections, pursuant to a provision of county law. The board of elections claiming to act under authority of election law likewise fixed his salary. John A. Snyder, then county clerk, not being clear which salary to pay, consulted County Attorney Eckert, who advised him to pay salary fixed by the supervisors. The matter was in dispute for some time and finally by agreement between Mr. Simpson and County Attorney Eckert, Mr. Simpson brought damages proceedings to test the right under which the board of supervisors had acted. At special session the county was defeated, but upon appeal to the appellate division court below was reversed and a judgment against Mr. Simpson in $14 costs was docketed against him. In view of the fact it was in a test case brought at the instance of the supervisors to determine a mooted question of law, it is a hardship that Mr. Simpson should be required to pay the costs. Furthermore Mr. Simpson has actually acquired some property to which the judgment attaches as a lien and it is somewhat an embarrassment to him. There may be some question of the right of the board of supervisors to satisfy this judgment, but under the circumstances it is inclined to believe that we should not run the risk of criticism by doing so. Received and filed.

Simpson Judgment Satisfied.

Supervisor Shultz moved the act to divide a fire district in the town of Saugerties. The bill went to a reading and was passed.

Supervisor Shultz offered a resolution which was adopted that the board of supervisors should not incur the cost of a test case, the amount being $105.14, be satisfied.

New Resolutions.

The following resolutions were read and laid over under the rule: Supervisors Desinberry, Elwyn DeWitt, that $21,597.80 be paid on county as recommended to the committee on printing. Supervisors McKibben, Elwyn DeWitt, that $7,982.62 be paid on county as recommended by committee on sheriff's accounts. Supervisors Snyder, Archibald, that $66,381.25 be paid on county and placed in hands of county treasurer to credit of board of auditors.

Adopting resolutions that were laid over at previous session on motion of Supervisor Shultz, the board of supervisors adjourned until Friday evening, December 5, at 7:30 o'clock.
